Grain towers damaged

A freak accident while grain was being unloaded early Friday at Semo Grain Co. at Morley heavily damaged two of the company's grain towers. About 700 bushels of wheat were being unloaded into a truck from a full 18,000 to 19,000 bushel tower when a joint in the structure buckled, causing the tower to lean into a second tower. In addition to the structure of the towers, a walkway and transfer pipe along the tops of the towers were damaged. No grain was lost and no cause for the accident has been discovered. Jim Hastings, a company official, said the towers will have to be taken down and new ones built. Replacement of the two towers may take some time, due to a scarcity of grain storage towers at this time, he added. (Daily Standard photo)

Nixon signs transatlantic unity pact

BRUSSELS (AP) — President Nixon signed a declaration of transatlantic unity today on his way to a Moscow summit meeting and promised he would not sacrifice the interests of the European allies to advance detente.

"In the world in which we live, with the nuclear power that overhangs us, there is no alternative to negotiations," he said later at a luncheon given by Belgium's King Baudouin. "There is no alternative to peace."

But Nixon also reportedly told leaders of 14 alliance states at a closed session that he would maintain U.S. troop strength in Western Europe and would guard against "euphoria" when he meets with Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev for talks beginning Thursday in the Kremlin.

The President also declared that defence and detente are inseparable. White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler reported him as saying: "Western cohesion provides the basis for conducting detente in the common interest."

The new NATO declaration was signed in a 15-minute ceremony preceding the lunch at the royal palace. NATO Secretary General Joseph M.A.H. Luns, the only speaker for the short, public ceremony, declared that with the declaration "all our countries are stronger and more secure."

The NATO declaration was the one agreeed upon and published in Ottawa lst week. It reaffirmed that the alliance is indispensable for the security and defense of America and Western Europe.

France's new president, Valery Giscard d'Estaing, was absent and sent new Premier Jacques Chirac. It was the first appearance of a French premier at NATO headquarters since President Charles de Gaulle expelled the aliance's military headquarters from France.

Ragland disqualifies himself in murder case

NEW MADRID — Circuit Judge William L. Five persons, including two Sikeston men, were injured in four area traffic accidents Tuesday, according to the highway patrol.

Larry Wayne Garrett, 18, of Sikeston received minor injuries at 9:55 a.m. on Route UU one mile south of Charleston when his pickup struck a truck driven by Robert Pennington, 45, of Sikeston. A spokesman for the patrol said Garrett attempted to pass the Pennington truck as it made a left turn.

Garrett was taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston for treatment of a facial injury. Pennington also was treated at the hospital emergency room for minor head and shoulder injuries.

A Malden motorcyclist was injured at 8:30 a.m. at the McGuires. community four miles south of Malden at the junction of Highways 25 and 62.

The accident occurred when an eastbound car driven by Joy Lynn Walz, 21, of Poplar Bluff Route Five pulled into the intersection and struck a southbound motorcycle driven by Samuel Bliss Dortch, 75, of Malden Route Two.

Dortch suffered a broken left leg and was taken to Dunklin County Memorial Hospital in Kennett.

Another car - motorcycle accident at 10:40 a.m. on Highway 51 in Puxico resulted in one minor injury.

The patrol said a northbound car driven by Joseph Robert Brown, 54, of St. Louis turned into the path of a southbound motorcycle driven by Sammy Lee Cates, 38, of Puxico.

Cates was taken to Lucy Lee Hospital in Poplar Bluff.

An accident at 7:50 p.m. three miles south of Holcomb on Highway 25 resulted in one minor injury.

Bicyclist injured in accident

Paul Holifield, the 11-year- old son of Shirley Holifield, 415 Fletcher St., was struck and injured by a pickup truck at 1:45 p.m. Tuesday at the corner of School and Kendall streets.

Police said the boy was struck when he rode his bicycle from Kendall Street onto School Street into the path of a southbound truck driven by Johnny Litchford, 605 S. Frisco St.

Police said Litchford stopped and told the boy to wait until he could get help, but the boy jumped on his bicycle and rode home.

Litchford then drove to the police station to report the accident.

A short time later, Mrs. Holifield called police and said she was taking her son to Missouri Delta Community Hospital, where he was treated for multiple scratches and released.

Ross sentenced to 55 years

CHARLESTON — Calvin Ross, 23, of St. Louis, a former resident of New Madrid, was sentenced Tuesday by Circuit Judge Marshall Craig to a total of 55 years in custody of the State Department of Corrections after a motion for a new trial was overruled.

Ross was sentenced to 25 years on a felonious assault charge, stemming from a Dec. 4, 1973 assault with a gun on Willie Hardin, 68, of rural New Madrid and 30 years on an armed robbery charge in connection with the robbery of the D. C. Barry Grocery and Service Station, where Hardin was employed near Kewanee. The sentences are to run consecutively.

A Circuit Court jury found Ross guilty on the charges June 5 but was unable to agree on the punishment in the change of venue case from New Madrid County. Ross was given credit for 202 days already spent in jail since his arrest.

Robert Ross, 23, of San Diego, Calif., and Charles Williams, 31, of New Madrid also have been found guilty on the same charges. Robert Ross also received a 55- year prison sentence May 23, and Williams was sentenced to 14 years on May 29.

In other court action, a decree of dissolution of marriage was granted to Polly Nora Adams and John A. Adams; and a contract suit brought by Cook Industries Inc. against George Hurtchison Jr. was dismissed with prejudice.

Two damage suits were filed this week in Circuit Court against Dr. T. P. Fenton, a Charleston osteopath.

The first suit, seeking $60,000 in compensatory damages and $100,000 punitive damages, was filed by Vashiffiva Williams of Charleston. Miss Williams charges in the suit that her three- month- old son, Rommey Delmar Williams, died Jan. 3, 1974, after he was taken to the office of Dr. Fenton for treatment on Jan. 2.

The suit further charges that Dr. Fenton failed to prescribe medicine to control, improve and assist in healing and making the child well in the early stages of bronchopneumonia and or congestive condition of the child. It also charges him with failing to stop vomiting and severe dehydration or to hospitalize the child.

Mrs. Jennevis L. Miller is seeking $75,000 compensatory damages and $100,000 punitive damages in her suit against Dr. Fenton in conncection with the July 6, 1973, death of her husband, Jack Miller.

In the suit, Dr. Fenton is accused of being careless and negligent in the treatment of Miller, who was injured on July 5, 1973, when a vehicle on which he was working fell on him.

The suit further charges that Dr. Fenton failed to examine Miller when he was brought to the doctor's office for serious abdominal, pelvic and bodily inuuries which required

A 'COMICAL' PREDICTION

Some will say it's part of the current "nostalgia" kick. Others will attribute it to the search for "relevance." Still others may suggest it's the result of the discovery in the 1950s that "Johnny can't read."

Whatever the reasons, the fact is that comic books are the craze on college campuses these days.

According to College and University Business Reports, "Comics are so popular that more than 50,000 students now pay a dollar each to belong to a comic book society with chapters on more than 100 campuses."

A number of colleges and universities offer noncredit courses using comic books, including Brown, Tufts, Indiana, Texas Techn, Bowling Green, Auburn, Hunter, Brigham Young and Wisconsin.

The comic book industry, which was born about 40 years ago, hit its peak during World War II when sales were estimated at 600 million a year. Primarily due to television, circulation decline in the 1950s to an annual rate of less than 200 million. Growth resumed in the 1960s, and currently more than 300 million comic books are sold annually.

Some 25 per cent of young adults now read comic books or magazines, particularly at the college level. A trend toward topicality has captured the affections of a sophisticated new generation of readers, says publisher Stan Lee, who puts out a number of comic books, including one called "Crazy," a satirical magazine ribbing the establishment.

Lee insists that besides being entertaining, comic books are educational. Studies have shown their value in teaching youngsters how to read and develop their skills at comprehension. Comic books utilize a vocabulary of 20,000 words, he says. The college graduate level is 30,000 words.

"Within the next decade," he predicts, "it is my belief that comic books will come into their own as an educational medium and be universally recognized as perfectly viable forms of communication, education and art."

"Have you ever wondered," asks "Forward Chattanooga," a publication of the Greater Chattanooga Area Chamber of Commerce, "how to get your finger into the Federal pie and get in on all the money the Federal Government gives away to people? Well, the Federal Government has now put it all in one place in a book called the Catalog of Federal Domestic Assistance. A brief check of this book indicated among the programs listed were 402 dealing with education, 205 dealing with housing and community development, 82 dealing with the environment and the list goes on and on. We must apologize to our readers since it took us about a year to wade through his cornucopia of Federal largess and to our surprise, before we had finished with our research, the Office of Management and Budget had already issued a new Catalof of Fedeal Domestic Assistance. To our dismay the only thing we are prepared to tell our readers about the new catalog is that the Federal Government is keeping its price in line with inflation and has increased the cost of the updated version from $7 to $7.50, or by 7.1 per cent."

Sixty million Americans on food stamps? That's the prediction of Re. Martha W. More and more people are on the highways with trailers behind the family car. With this in mind, Colonel Sam S. Smith, the Superintendent of the Missouri State Highway Patrol, today called attention to certain skills motorists should practice when pulling their trailers.

1. Start slowly and allow more time for other traffic to clear before moving onto a highway. Glance frequently into the mirror to check on traffic. 2. Position your car and trailer farther from the curb than usual before making a right turn. Keep well toward the center of your lane when rounding curves. 3. Towing a trailer will reduce your acceleration capability in overtaking and passing another vehicle. Allow more time and distance to pass and allow more room before you move back into your lane. 4. Maintain a greater following distance when pulling a boat and trailer than with your car alone. 5. Your speed may be slower than that of others on the highway. Special attention, therefore, should be given to drivers desiring to pass. When a large vehicle passes you, a large air mass movement will tend to move your trailer to the right. A slight steering adjustment at this time will help the situation. 6. Make sure the trailer is securely hitched and that it has good, properly inflated tires.

"Driving with a trailer is vastly different from operating a car alone," Colonel Smith stated. "Special skills are required of drivers to safely pull their rigs in traffic. I urge motorists to acquire these skills and to be extra careful when pulling trailers."

BEHIND THE PEACE

Getting the cease-fire agreement between Israel and Syria was a great accomplishment for Henry Kissinger. But we are just mean enough to wonder how much the promise of $100 million to Syria had to do with the peace, and how much the $200 million to clean out and open up the Suez Canal had in gaining the Egyptian signature to the peace treaty. How busy our mint's printing presses are going to be the rest of this year and how long can we wait without increasing the debt limit again.

HOUSE VOTES NEW LIFE INTO ANTI-POVERTY WASTE

If one has ever been puzzled as to why Congress is held in such disrepute by the American people, he should look no further than the action taken recently by the House of Representatives. With the Administration threatening a veto and in face of a dire warning by Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur Burns that Congress must curb its dangerously inflationary spending, the House, by a vote of 331 to 53, voted $3.76 billion to breathe new life into the discredited and corrupt anti-poverty programs.

At a time when the polls have revealed that a new conservative majority of the American people has emerged, fed up with the Washington scene, disgusted with the Washington scene, disgusted with government corruption and waste, and bled white by the high taxes and inflation which have been the price of hundreds of government programs spawned in the past decade, short-sighted, ill-informed and indifferent congressmen of both parties rolled over and played dead for a highly organized lobby or subsidized poverty professionals and their allies.

Technically, the House voted to disband the agency called the Office of Economic Opportunity but the members kept alive its key elements, including $1 billion worth of the controversial community action programs, by transferring OEO's functions to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Fearful that HEW boss Caspar Weinberger might curb some of the questionable community action programs which are most controversial, the House required that community action have its own director to be confirmed by the liberal Senate and provided for transfer of present OEO employers and their radical union. The House, in short, wanted to shield the community action programs from any potential reform efforts that Weinberger has not even said he would try to undertake.

Although it would take at least as many pages as the 179 in the bill to outline fully its weaknesses and dangers, here are just a few of the things the measure would empower federal bureaucrats to do:

--Finance liberal activists organizations engaged in lobbying, demonstrations, boycotts and picketing and allow these organizations to use federal facilities and taxpayer-subsidized equipment. The type of organization that will become eligible for financial aid includes the American Indian Movement, the Marxist-influenced La Raza Unida party, and the leaders in the national movement for pre-trial release of accused felons.

--Fund at will thousands of private, non-profit activist groups which, in turn, may provide federal money and resources to additional thousands of non-profit activists groups.

--Provide $50,000, 15- year loans to any person who wishes to establish a business owned by "low- income individuals."

-- Establish "neighborhood centers" in every neighborhood in America to promote legal services, consumer protection, child development, housing, recreation and educational programs.

--Furnish "professional architectural and related services ... to persons and community organizations or groups not otherwise able to afford such assistance."

--Underwrite "Minority Business Assistance" to "individuals, partnerships or other entities" which benefit enterprises "controlled by one or more socially or economically disadvantages persons."

--Turn over 15- year loans to any low- income rural families "not qualified to obtain such funds by loan under other Federal programs."

--Continue to install representatives of welfare rights groups, labor unions, left- wing activists, and other organized "spokespersons" for the poor on the governing boards of community action agencies.

So here's the way that Congress is spending your taxes -- for the Great Society's most unpopular program.

CALM APPROACH

The petition drive to put election reform on the ballot this year in Missouri has an appealing sound.

Watergate has focused most forcibly the public's attention on need for reform.

We have not had the opportunity to read the proposal. And we're not alone in that. Quote after quote from persons who say they favor the proposal also sees them adding that they've not read it, or haven't read all of it.

And that's the danger.

Proposals which affect each of us should be advanced and studied in a calmer atmosphere.

What sounds real good may under calm consideration and study prove otherwise.

We note that Secretary of State James Kirkpatrick, Missouri's chief election official, raises questions about the initiative proposal. Kirkpatrick cannot be faulted as an advocate of election reform, having been in the forefront of the effort from a time when it was not popular.

We absolutely favor reform in the election process.

We favor such legislation being done by the Missouri General Assembly.

We favor a strong, unwavering spotlight be kept on those elected officials as they work up election reform.

We favor no excuses for a strong bill not being written.

But we want to see a bill which won't create more problems that it solves.

We want a bill which will neither eliminate the smaller contributor, nor encourage the trend by which only the wealthy may run for public office.

We believed elected legislators, calling for expert opinion from both active politicians and learned theoreticians, is best equipped to do this most needed job.

NO SYMPATHY FOR SYMBIONESE

Unlike a lot of other people, we had no sympathy for the Symbionese scoundrels who died in a gunfight and the ensuing fire in Los Angeles last week. Of course we sympathize with their parents. But these outlaws would have stopped at nothing, murder included, to terrorize the nation. The same people who disparage the police and FBI shooting back at desperate criminals, would likely favor a law which forbad police carrying revolvers, preferring to see the officers killed than to have them shoot down criminals. Until the present day pacifists came along, there was comparatively little crime and the United States had never lost a war. Then came Korea followed by Vietnam, where the military had an order, "Do not shoot until you are shot at." Lieutenant Calley is a good example. He was ordered to go in and clean up a town that had been friendly to the Communists. Doubtless he did, but he shot up the place and killed a lot of people. Of course he was aided by those under his command. Now he has a dishonorable discharge and will have to serve a jail sentence, likely depriving him of many privileges. Yet Lieutenant Calley was trying to help his country by killing off its enemies and those who befriended the enemy. Likely few are in agreement with our stand on a lot of things, but we are going to tell you how we feel.

QUESTION OF CLEARCUTTING

It is all very well for theoreticians, ecologists and envrionmentalists to sit in comfortable meeting halls and debate the pros and cons of forest land management . It is something else to deal with the practical side of such management as timber companies and foresters must do everyday. A crucial question relating to forest management has been clearcutting--a method of timber harvesting in which, under appropriate conditions, all merchantable trees are removed from a given area.

An example of why clearcutting can be necessary was cited by the director of forestry research for a large timber company. He pointed out that a single old- growth tree four feet in diameter and 200 feet tall will weight about 15 tons. "The cutting, moving and loading of such a tree," he said, "is a considerable engineering feat requiring large, heavy, powerful equipment." He added that because of the cost in getting the equipment to the area to be logged off "and the physical impossiblity of removing part of these forest giants without destroying or seriously injuring the remaining trees" clearcutting is imperative. Also, the species of tree influences harvesting practices. For example, Douglas fir trees demand great amounts of sunlight when young. Clearcutting of mature trees is a substitute for the old forest fires, windstorms and disease that used to wipe out old-growth stands.

As the forestry expert made obvious, clearcutting is one of the indispensable tools of modern forest management. It is a tool best understood by those who work in the forests.

CONGRESS SHOULD ESTABLISH BUDGET COMMITTEE

A major cause of inflation is out-of-sight government spending. And Congress can do something axout it!

We all know our taxes are high. But we have almost no way to know how our money is being spent. Unfortunately, neither does the Congress. There is no procedure by which any congressman can evaluate his votes to spend money in relationship to the total federal spending budget for the year. Only after all the spending bills have been voted can anyone add up the totals.

The Administration recently submitted a $304.4 billion budget for action by Congress. This is more than 50 per cent higher than 1970 budget outlays, a really frightening increase.

A Joint Congressional Committee on Budget Control has come up with a plan for Congress to vote on a spending ceiling each year and to have a procedure to provide an overview of the budget as it makes its slow way through Congress . The House has approved this bill and it is being considered by the Senate.

Nothing should stand in the way of this essential budget reform proposal. Congressmen and Senators must have a mechanism to control federal spending if they wish to do so. Then it will be up to all of us to vote in November for candidates who pledge themselves to halt the growth of government expenditures.

Next day, the farmer made the delivery, but found no one at home. Being in a hurry, he left the chickens in the front yard, in an open crate. Naturally, they scattered all over the neighborhood, and the buyer had a hard time rounding them up.

Next day he called the farmer. "That was no way to deliver those chickens I ordered!" he said. "They got away, and I had to chase them all over town. All I could find was eleven."

"Is that so?" said the farmer. "Well, I think you did pretty well, considering that I only left six."

YOUNG PEOPLE HAVE MOST AT STAKE

The most important resource this country has is its work force.

It is the working American who is the backbone of our economic system, who produces the goods and services, pays the taxes, and, indirectly, creates business growth.

Better jobs for more Americans will come, of course, from business profits and the expectation of profits which are essential for companies to expand.

The term "profit," unfortunately, has taken on a negative, expolitive connotation in some segments of American society today. Vice President Gerald R. Ford told a group of business leaders recently that they have not succeeded in their efforts to educate the American public about the importance of profits.

Young people are entering the job market each year. Increasing numbers of positions msut be created. Without steady growth, the economy will soon stagnate.

Under our system high profits attract competitiors who, in turn, will provide more jobs and seek to produce better products at lower prices. It is a never- ending circle which, if broken at any point, will have disastrous consequences for those at all other points along the flow.

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: Nixon Leaks, Too

WASHINGTON — The White House howls about news leaks have moved us to relate for the first time how those same horrified gentlemen have tried to use our column to leak unfavorable stories against their political foes.

First, the White House tried to establish a direct pipeline into our office. This was shut down after our exposes of the Nixon Administration landed us on the White House "enemies list."

Thereafter, the President's men used indirect approaches to plant stories with us, once routing information through the Virgin Islands.

Here are the details:

Early in 1969, President Nixon's political tutor, the late Murray Chotiner, called on us to say that the new President wanted friendly relations and that the resources of the White House would be available to us for hard- to- get information.

We don't know whether Nixon himself was a party to this arrangement. But ex-White House aide Clark Mollenhoff has told us that he learned from the President's former staff chief, H. R. Haldeman, of Chotiner's secret relationship with our office.

Through the Chotiner channel, we received only half-a- dozen stories, including the Justice Department's file on the tax investigation of George Wallace and his brother, Gerald. This was at a time when the White House feared the Alabama governor would run for President as an independent in 1972 and drain votes away from Nixon.

We always double- checked the White House leads and seldom gave the facts the emphasis Chotiner wanted. When we also started publishing Nixon scandals, the olive branch was withdrawn and the Chotiner leak dried up. But we learned that the White House still kept trying to plant stories with us indirectly. We have obtained the confidential White House file, for example, on Sen. George McGovern's campaign treasurer, Henry Kimelman. The file shows how the White House tried to slip us derogatory information about Kimelman.

On May 12, 1972, presidential aide W. Richard Howard wrote to a White House colleague, Fred Fielding, alleging that Kimelman "was nearly indicted last year because he is a liquor importer in the Virgin Islands and apparently he really rakes off the profits."

The allegation, it turned out later, was erroneous. But the memo continued: "We believe there must be material at Justice and Interior on this sleezy character that we would like to obtain through your fantastic sources.

"We could, of course, control the release of this material but need your help in getting what apparently is some pretty good stuff." The memo was stamped "Confidential- Eyes Only."

Not long afterward, the White House received a memo from Interior Secretary Rogers Morton's executive assistant, Bob Hitt. This one was stamped "Very Confidential-Eyes Only."

Hitt provided a rundown on Kimelman, telling about an investigation into alleged irregularities but concluding: "The investigation turned up nothing sinister that I am aware of."

By an interesting coincidence, we received a communication about this time from William N. Greer of the Virgin Islands. He enclosed a two- page summary of allegations against Kimelman, which we investigated but couldn't substantiate.

We were startled to find this letter in the White House's confidential Kimelman file. It was accompanied by a letter from Greer's wife to White House aide Harry Dent. "Enclosed herewith," wrote Nellie Greer, "is a copy of information sent by my husband to Jack Anderson.

We have learned that Greer, a former U. S. marshal, is a security specialist who does undercover work for commercial firms in the Virgin Islands. His wife in 1972 was a minor Republican appointee working in the Government House.

Reached in the Virgin Islands, Greer denied that the White House had instigated his letter to us. He had obtained the detailed accusations against Kimelman, said Greer, from local law enforcement agencies.

The Kimelman file shows that several Watergate figures -- ex- Attorney General John Mitchell, ex- White House counsel John Dean, ex-presidential aide Charles Colson and a few others -- tried to dig up dirt on Kimelman.

The results can be summed up in a June 5, 1972, memo from Dean to Howard. "To date," wrote Dean, "we have been unable to come up with any material on Kimelman that might be used to illustrate the true nature of the money man in McGovern's life."

ZIEGLER'S FISH: A year ago, we revealed that the National Aquarium was forced to spend 10 per cent of its meager budget to maintain fish tanks fors enators, representatives and other pampered poohbahs. Our story shortly put an end to the government's door- to- door guppy service.

There is, however, one lone fish fancier holding out. The President's press secretary, Ron Ziegler, has stubbornly refused to give up his Bleeding Heart Tetras.

Rumor has it that Ziegler gains great inspiration from his fish. He is about as communicative as his finny friends.

Footnote: The federal fish-tank tender, who must still service Ziegler's aquarium, isn't permitted to enter the office while the great man is present. Not until Ziegler slips out does his secretary notify the aquarist he may enter.

SOCIAL SECURITY NO LONGER PAYS

During the early years of Social Security, started during the 10 years of the Great Depression, the first recipients stood a chance of getting more than they had paid into the plan. Even then, much of the money for older citizens came not from federal Social Security but from old- age pension plans conceived and paid for by individual states. Later, the federal taxpayer was saddled with more of each state's burden, the implication being that "Washington money" was "free."

Now it is clear that Social Security does not pay. Most of the millions of wage earners forced to participate in the program could get private insurance programs paying twice as much for the same expense. As this becomes clear to more people, the younger wage earners, who are being most cheated as the Social Security tax bites harder, likely will demand a better shake.

Studies indicate that any wage earner under 40 is almost certain to wind up at retirement age having paid in more hard- earned dollars than he can collect, allowing for the ravages of continued governmental inflation. If younger workers demand lower Social Security payments or higher benefits, the system will be bankrupted.

Constructives have long pointed out that the system actually has been the same as bankrupt for years. The taxpayer has been misled into thinking that there is a "fund" set aside to insure that he will receive his Social Security. Infact, most of the funds for payment come out of the general treasury and current payments, the "fund" having been borrowed up already to pay federal commitments other than Social Security. HLH

Ann Landers

Test will reveal which profession 'most brazen'

Dear Ann Landers: You printed a column recently from a lady lawyer who compared the morals of lawyers with those of physicians. It was not a theoretical argument. No doctor had ever made a pass at her, she said, but the lawyer who handled her divorce case propositioned her and she agreed -- right in his office on his leather couch.

You were skeptical, but that lady was right. At least 50 per cent of the divorced women of my acquaintance (including my wife) have had pitches from their lawyers -- ranging from verbal offers to near rape.

You said poor judgment, weak character, etc. don't belong exclusively to any one profession. I agree. But how about a test? Why don't you ask your readers to drop a postcard with one word on it. The question: "From which profession did you receive the most brazen pitch?" But let's not limit it to doctors and lawyers. The third category should be clergymen. I'll bet lawyers will come in first, clergymen second, and doctors a poor third . -- Cynical For A Reason

Dear Cnnic: You have a weird circle of acquaintances, but I accept your challenge.

Please, women -- no letters with details. Just a one- word postcard naming the profession. I'll report the results after we do a ten- day count.

Dear Ann Landers: I'd like to respond to the widows and divorcees who say they can't find a decent man. I'm sure the complaining females have met several very nice men, but no man stayed around long for the following reasons. As a man who has been divorced for six years and taken out dozens of women, I speak from experience. Here is what I've been running into:

Every divorced girl tells me what a rat her ex-husband was. How he drank, gambled, ignored her, slept around and lied like a Persian rug. Not one of the divorced women I took out ever mentioned the possiblility that perhaps there was something wrong with HER.

The widow is worse. She wants to have you over to dinner right away. Then out come the family album with the endless monologue on how wonderful her "Albert" was. What a beautiful person, without a single human flaw. A saint. So generous, so considerate. And of course there are photographs of him all over the place.

Who cares? The answer is NOBODY, and the sooner these divorcees and widows get this through their heads, the better their chances will be for a second marriage.-- Also Single and Looking

Dear Single: You've had a run of bum luck, mister. There are plenty of divorcees and widows around who don't fit your description. I hope you find one soon.

Dear Ann Landers: I did a dumb thing and I could kick myself. For my 15th birthday, my grandmother gave me ten dollars so I could go to a doctor and have my ears pierced. Well, last year, my girl friend pierced her own ears with ice cubes and a needle and she offered to do mine for nothing. I let, her and she put the holes too far down.

If I don't wear earrings, will the holes close up? Can I then have my ears pierced by a real doctor? Or will those first holes always be there?-- Dumb Doris

Dear Doris: A doctor can make the new holes immediately. The old ones will close in time.

Better policies needed to deal with shortages

WASHINGTON, D. C. — The growing probability and now the reality of shortages in the mid seventies, resulting in high prices for food, fuel, fiber and metals, has been a concern to me since long before the troubles of the past months faced the consuming public.

As long ago as 1950, at my suggestion when I was chairman of the National Securities Resources Board, President Truman appointed the Materials Policy Commission to study our national sources of minerals, metals and other essential commodities.

In its final report in 1952, the commission, chaired by William Paley, recommended that the government establish a top level federal agency to keep track of our raw materials and coordinate national policy to maintain adequate supplies.

Unfortunately, attempts to establish such an agency were never adequately supported and information needed for more realistic natural resource development and trade policies has become scattered throughout the federal bureaucracy into more than 50 different agencies.

Now, after almost 25 years of haphazard federal policy toward developing information and plans to anticipate and deal with fluctuating prices and shortages, the Senate has taken a positive step that could result in more constructive planning and action. It has approved and sent to the House of Representatives a bill, S. 3523, to establish a national commission to raise warning flags whenever shortages appear likely to develop and to recommend steps to deal with such problems before they cause great hardship.

The lack of coordination on information and planning for adequate supplies of vital resources and commodities affects everyone in Missouri and across the nation, whether he lives in an urban or rural area.

As example, the proposed commission on supplies and shortages could recommend steps to help avoid the uneven application of agricultural export and import restrictions. This has disrupted longstanding trade patterns the United States needs to earn the money to pay for our imports.

Blessed as we are with the world's most productive farm lands, the United States is a major supplier of agricultural commodities to the world market. We supply 90 percent of the soybeans and a large percentage of the wheat and feed grains traded among nations. Wiser production and trade policies could turn this productive genius into greater advantage for the farmer AND the consumer.

Unless we develop better policies to deal with present and expected shortages, many of the items we take for granted will be available only at very high prices or not at all. For example, Jamaica, a major supplier of bauxite for our aluminum industry, recently began negotiations to increase taxes and royalties on bauxite mined by U.S. companies. Copper, coffee and bananas are other examples of foreign products we need and which might fall under the same category soon.

Hopefully, S.3523 will be a first step toward achievement of a more realistic and constructive national policy on production, development and wise utilization of food, fuel, fiber, minerals and metals.

Ambulance trustees sworn in

DEXTER — The six trustees elected to the board of the Stoddard County Ambulance District Monday night were officially sworn into office and began organizing the district.

Although basic organization was accomplished, the big question which was left hanging in the air after a lengthy session adjourned was how much will it cost to run the ambulance district and what rate will the tax levy need to be set? The board is empowered to set a levy up to 15 cents per $100 valuation.

County Clerk John Marvin Capps gave the oath of office to the six members of the board: Jack Smarr of Dexter, Bill Poeppelmeyer of Bloomfield, Ray Coats of Bernie, Wesley Cowan of Essex, David Cummins of Advance and John Roach of Puxico.

The Stoddard County Court (Judges Ermer Garner, Joseph Ward and Harold "Pete" Snider) was present to observe the ceremony and comment on the district. Discussion of costs was present from the beginning of the meeting.

Judge Snider mentioned that the court "went out on a limb" with people in the county when the district was proposed saying that it could be operated "cheaper than 15 cents." He said the court's inquiries indicated it could be operated cheaper. "The figures we were told were seven, eight or 10 cents," he commented.

Judge Ward felt that the law making ambulance operation more regulated, hence increasing the costs and causing private operators to cease service, was "about the worst thing to happen in the history of this county." It placed the county in the position of assuming financial responsibility for operating ambulance service instead of leaving it in private hands.

Before the ambulance board of trustees began their own session, Capps told them, "You're not going to start in debt. The court is picking up half the tab this year."

The district will receive four new ambulances paid for by the federal government. They will be equipped with government financed radio equipment. "There were only 50 ambulances allotted to the state this year and we got four of them," Judge Snider said.

Capps added that the ambulances should be delivered the first of August. "We had hoped to have one or two by tonight," he said.

"Dexter Memorial Hospital is operating an ambulance answering service," Capps said. "it was the only way we could get the ambulances promised to us (by the federal government). It doesn't mean a patient must be taken to Dexter hospital."

Prior to leaving, Capps also warned the trustees that in order to receive money from this year's tax revenue they must file the levy by Aug. 10.

When the board held its own meeting after the others left, Smarr was elected chairman, Cummins was elected treasurer and Coats was elected secretary.

The second Tuesday in June was selected as the date to hold an annual meeting during which to install new board members, elect officers and set the tax levy for the coming year.

Two board members will be elected each year. The terms of the board members are staggered. Cowan and Roach are beginning one- year terms. Cummins and Smarr are beginning two- year terms, while Peoppelmeyer and Coats are beginning three- year terms.

The board hopes to hold elections the first Tuesday in April in conjunction with school and city elections. Holding an election in conjunction with other political bodies will help defray election costs.

The board decided to meet the second and fourth Monday of each month at 7:30 p.m., for the present, in the Stoddard County Circuit Courtroom. Special meetings may be called at the discretion of the chairman, one is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. July 2.

The ambulance district's fiscal year was set from Jan. 1 to Dec. 31. If the levy is properly filed this year, the district should start generating tax revenue in November, according to Capps.

Until the district begins to generate revenue, Smarr commented that the county will have to pay bills or else the district will have to borrow money against future revenues. However, the judges had departed the meeting pledging to help in any way they could.

In addition to the basic organization and tax levy, the board gave some discussion to collections and what fees to charge users of the ambulance service.

The board seemed to feel some minimum fee should be established. "In outlying areas, there is going to have to be a minimum fee plus," Cummins said. Smarr felt that without a minimum fee, many persons would take advantage of the ambulance service for non-emergency use.

"We'll be involved in overhead," Cummins said. "We'll have to defray some overhead through the fees."

Smarr asked the board members to give a great deal of thought to the fee schedule. "it is going to be a tough nut to crack," he said.

The board seemed to feel a lot of volunteer help will be needed to run four ambulances, that the district could not afford to hire all the necessary employes.

Poeppelmeyer commented that Mississippi County officials had estimated that it costs $60,000 to $65,000 per ambulance to operate a service on a full- time basis.

With costs uppermost in their minds (what fees to charge, what levy to set, how to financially set up the district), the board adjourned until the July 2 special meeting, at which time the trustees hope to set a levy.

State police say woman must stop transporting elderly

BRAGG CITY — For 10 years, Mrs. Barbara Cecil Graham has helped the elderly of Bragg City get to wherever they needed to go, usually getting little or nothing in return.

"It needed doing," said Mrs. Graham, who estimates she's made 500 or more trips to Kennett, eight miles away, carrying people to the doctor, dentist, hospital or simply shopping.

Now, after a "disagreement" with the Missouri State Highway Patrol, she has discontinued doing so.

"I hated to, really. For a lot of the old folks here, there's no way for them to get to town, and that hurts me. Oh, if an emergency comes up, I'll still help, but it won't be like before," she said.

The rub with the highway patrol came three weeks ago when she was told to either obtain a chauffeur's license or stop transporting people.

"The officer was really nice to me, but he didn't understand. What happened, I think, is a man I wouldn't take to the whisky store called the police and said I was running a business. Well, I'll have you know I never have asked anyone for a nickel. Some contribute, but then it takes a little something to pay for the gas between here and Kennett," she said.

"As far as I'm concerned, she was doing a good service," saidBragg City Mayor Warren Napier, a grocer.

"Some of the older people here aren't even able to walk to the store, and I know they don't have a way to get to the hospital ... we don't have a taxi here," he said.

Mrs. Graham, 68, became involved with the senior citizens shortly after her husband died. He had been the town constable for 25 years.

"Cecil would come and get you no matter if it was 3 o'clock in the morning. I've known it to happen," said one elderly man living just outside town.

"I don't reckon anybody gave her much more than a thank you most of the time."

"You see, most of the people who are older around here only have their government checks, and the way the prices are, they don't go very far. Some of them have to go once every four weeks just for a checkup," Mrs. Graham said.

A chauffeur's license in Missouri costs about $10. "I guess I could afford that, but I get kind of nervous about all those tests you have to take," she said.

"But, really, it's the very idea of them telling me something like that. Why I never thought I was doing anything wrong. I was just trying to do a little something to help people.

"It's the principle of the thing."

Churchill's Severest Critic Heard From

GENERALISSIMO CHURCHILL. By R. W. Thompson. Scribner's. 252 Pages. $8.95.

R. W. Thompson, a British military historian, in a relatively short book has written what few readers will deny is the severest criticism to date of Sir Winston Churchill's performance as his country's civilian military chief during the greatest threat it has experienced in more than a century — perhaps ever.

Thompson, a member of the Institute for Strategic Studies, maintains that by his very nature Churchill as both prime minister and defense minister insisted so stubbornly on exercising authority down to the level of battlefield tactics that he endangered Britain's success at times in its fight with Hitler.

He even argues that Churchill actually damaged the reputations of such military stalwarts as Field Marshal Earl Wavell and Field Marshal Sir Claude Auchinleck for the prime minister's own aggrandizement in power and political salvation. Thompson sees Auchinleck as the real victor over German Field Marshal Erwin Rommel in North Africa in the first Battle of El Alamein, only to be shunted off to make room for Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery in the assured victory of second Alamein.

Thompson acknowledges the value of Churchill as the trumpet of democracy in the bleak days of Hitler's early victories. He has shrewd comments on Churchill, "the great diversionist," the 'round-end player with a critical disadvantage in men and materiel whose gambles extended from the abortive Gallipoli campaign of World War I to the costly Anzio venture he favored in World War II.

H(elp). Van Whittle,
a Democrat, for
New Madrid County Collector on Aug. 6

"Yes, I am campaigning for you," said Mrs. Wilma Coffee, a Lilbourn businesswoman, as New Madrid Collector Candidate H. Van Whittle, left, takes his race to the people -- as opposed to a political machine.

"I want to thank all those people who have chosen to support me for this most important office.

"I am not a machine candidate. With voter registration, I think New Madrid Countians are waking up that the tide is beginning to roll and we can control our government if we get out and vote on election day.

"When first beginning my campaign, I went over this county and the song was --- 'You can't win.'

"I assure you, however, that song is not being heard now since the people are realizing they can vote and win with a candidate that is not allied with the machine, which is based on the belief that a man is so weak and inadequate that he is unable to govern himself, and therefore requires the rule of strong masters.

"Please realize that this is an opportunity for you to vote for someone other than political hacks, who have worked for years in the courthouse and jumped 50 feet high when told by political bosses."

Police procedure explained

Lt. Thurman Burns, training officer for Sikeston police department, told Kiwanians about police training procedures during Tuesday mornings club meeting at Ramada Inn.

Burns said the day will come when a man or woman who wants to become a police officer must have a certain number of hours of schooling.

Highway patrolmen now go through 22 weeks of strenuous training and know the law from A to Z concerning the state of Missouri.

Burns said the Sikeston force consists of 32 men, with 22 of them on road work.

Training is a continuous and never ending procedure to police officers, he added. The highway patrol furnished each member of the force a school schedule at the first of the year, and the policemen try to attend at least some of the sessions.

One officer has just completed a breathalyzer course and two other officers will attend narcotics training in November, he continued.

When someone new joins the force, he is put with a trainer — an officer who has attended some of the highway patrol courses — and then the new man is put on the road with an experienced roadman.

Bob Meyers presided at the meeting, and Lt. Burns was introduced by Gary Chullino.

Cape Girardeau Kiwanians Garland Fronabarger, Virgil Welch, Dave Graves, Carney Fesler, Joe Black and Cecil Blaylock were guests of the club.

VFW officers installed

PORTAGEVILLE — An installation ceremony for the new officers of Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 4924 was held Tuesday night at the community building.

Officers installed were Junior Russell, commander; Jay Wilson, senior vice commander; Carl Phillips, junior vice commander; Bill Houser, quartermaster; Bill Hobbs, adjutant; Glen Lennon, chaplain; and Joe Fleming, service officer.

The officers were installed by the immediate past commander, Paul "Pete" Welch.

The post has been meeting in the community building since it was chartered two years ago, and the members voted unanimously to proceed with the purchase of a building site for a new post home. Named to a committee for the selection of a site were Houser, Wilson, Hobbs and Russell.

The post agreed to have a ring toss concession for soft drinks at the annual Jaycee barbecue July 4 as a fund-raising project.

Following the meeting, a barbecue chicken dinner prepared by Welch and Russell was served.

Senator says state tax increase can be delayed

JEFFERSON CITY — Sen. Norman L. Merrell, D-Monticello, thinks a state tax increase can be staved off for two more years at least.

Merrell, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, has made it clear, however, that success in preventing a tax increase will call for very careful spending.

If, as now seems possible, the state's general revenue reserve at the end of the fiscal year this month is somewhere in the neighborhood of $80 million, the goal of no new taxes could be achieved.

But pressures for new and expanded programs are always strong and it is already clear that they will be renewed next year.

Merrell made his statement at a University of Missouri School of Journalism public affairs round table in Columbia last week. Another participant in the program was Rep. Wayne P. Goode, chairman of the House Education Committee.

Goode sponsored a bill this year intended to equalize state aid by changing the old school foundation program. It passed the House but never got out of the Senate Committee on Budget Control because of its estimated $40 million price tag.

Goode says he plans to introduce a similar bill next year and it will have the same basic goals -- to help the high cost urgan districts which have special local problems and also to help the poor rural districts which have such a low tax base they cannot provide adequate pupil support.

Support per pupil in Missouri is now far out of line, ranging from $400 per pupil in some poor rural districts to as much as $2,500 per pupil in Clayton, the wealthiest district.

Tax rates also vary widely, ranging from $2 per $100 assessed valuation to more than $5 in some districts.

"The property tax system in Missouri borders on the ridiculous," Goode said. "There's a big need for reforming the tax assessment procedure, which is basic to the whole thing. The present system just does not work."

He said the tax assessment situation, with its wide variations from county to county, was one of the problems that concerned him most about school financing.

Goode's bill would have raised the statewide average of state aid to about $950 a student, compared with the present guarantee of $400. That would be a long step toward the eventual goal of educators to have the schools supported 50 per cent by local taxes and 50 per cent by state aid.

Goode conceded that if his bill were passed by the 1975 session, it would not necessarily have to be fully funded. That has been the case with the present school foundation program during certain lean fiscal periods.

One problem is the so-called "grandfather clause", and Goode said he would be unyielding in his opposition to that because it would just compound some of the present inequities of the foundation program.

Merrell, a former schoolman himself, took the opposite tack. He said his one big reservation about Goode's bill was that it would take funds away from some districts. Merrell indicated he would be for it if it could be drafted so that all districts would be guaranteed the same amounts of state aid they are now getting.

States will now set libel suit standards

WASHINGTON (AP) — Over the protests of dissenters who differed among themselves, a narrow majority of the Supreme Court has devised a new rule governing libel suits by private individuals.

In a 5-4 decision Tuesday, the court said states are free to set their own standards for allowing private citizens to sue for damages for injuries suffered through libel. The decision had the effect of making it easier for private citizens to sue for libel, although the court set strict guidelines concerning awards for punitive damages.

To obtain punitive damages or to collect damages without proving they have been harmed, they must show that the statement of which they complain was made "in the knowledge that it was false or with reckless disregard of the truth."

Punitive damages are designed to punish the perpetrator of the libel. Another form of libel award is the presumed damage, ordered because of the fact of publication, without proof it did harm.

The court's decision wiped out a 1971 ruling in which it said private persons suing for libel damages of any kind needed to satisfy the reckless disregard test if the allegedly libelous statement concerned a matter of public interest.

It came in a case involving Chicago lawyer Elmer Gertz, who was called a "Communist fronter" by the John Birch Society's American Opinion magazine after he represented the family of a youth shot by a Chicago policeman.

Gertz won a $50,000 libel judgment from a jury, a judgment overturned by the U.S. Circuit Court in Chicago. The Supreme Court sent the case back to the lower court for a new trial.

Justices William O. Douglas and William J. Brennan dissented on grounds that it infringes on freedom of the press.

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justice Byron White attacked the majority from the opposite direction.

White said the decision "goes far towards eviscerating the effectiveness of the ordinary libel action" and would "leave the people at the complete mercy of the press." Burger, noting that the case decided involved a lawyer who was criticized because of his involvement in a controversial legal proceeding, said:

"The right to counsel would be gravely jeopardized if every lawyer who takes an unpopular case, civil or criminal, would automatically become fair game for irresponsible reporters and editors who might, for example, describe the lawyer as a 'mob mouthpiece' for representing a client with a serious prior criminal record."

The case was the latest in a series of major libel decisions in which the court established the reckless disregard test but limited it to public officials. Before, people bringing libel suits needed only to prove that the publisher or broadcaster had not taken reasonable care to see that the material was accurate.

In 1967, the court said public figures also must prove reckless disregard to collect for libel. Then, in 1971, the court declared that the same rule applied to statements about private individuals so long as they dealt with public issues.

USDA says grain stockpile prospects dim

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prospects for rebuilding the world's grain stockpile by the summer of 1975 are not as bright as indicated three months ago, the Agriculture Department said Monday.

The department's Foreign Agricultural Srvice said the consumption of grain — including wheat and corn — will be larger than believed earlier, while 1974 crop production in some areas will be less than indicated in a similar analysis last March 15.

"Crop prospects for 1974, especially for wheat, are somewhat less favorable in parts of North America and Asia," the report said. "Cool spring weather, combined with some planting delays, caused by excessive moisture conditions, have generally tended to reduce the earlier prospects for bumper crops of spring-sown grains in the affected areas."

The report, however, said wheat production this year will be larger than previously expected in some regions, including the Middle East, North Africa and parts of Europe.

"The feed grain stock level corn, oats, barley and sorghum on the other hand, may increase substantially, but this will depend heavily upon whether the 1974 U.S. corn crop reaches the level officially forecast last March," the report said.

Department officials have predicted U.S. farmers will produce a record corn crop this year of nearly 6.7 billion bushels, about 167 million metric tons. The report Monday, however, said wet weather had delayed planting in the Midwest and "has clouded this outlook somewhat."

The report showed world wheat consumption in the year beginning July 1 is expected to total 370.7 million metric tons, up from 365.5 million projected last March 15.

Although in excess of expected demand in 1974-75, that was down about 700,000 tons from the output estimated three months ago.

According to the new figures, the wheat stockpile held by the United States and its major export competitors — Canda, Australia and Argentina — will be 32.5 million tons on June 30, 1975, the end of the coming marketing year.

That would be down from a mid-1975 wheat stockpile of 33.8 million tons expected last March.

SeMo educators awarded grants

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Initial grants totaling more than $8,300 have been awarded to 15 Southeast Missouri State University professors by the University Research Council.

The council was established last year after a Faculty Senate committee recommended it to Southeast Missouri State president Dr. Mark F. Scully.

Purpose of the organization, which consists of representatives of each instructional division of the university, plus the director of institutional research and the university reference librarian, is to aid and encourage faculty research at all levels.

The grant program is being funded by the university, beginning with the 1974-75 school year, at the rate of $2 per full- time equivalent student, according to Dr. Tom Harte, associate professor of speech and council chairman.

Research topics for which the first grants were awarded range from a study of thermal springs in Yellowstone National Park to geological field mapping of the Perryville Quadrangle to a study of women in Civil War cities.

Altogether, three projects in earth science and three in history were funded, two in education- psychology received awards and one each went to studies in mathematics, biology, physics, social science, chemistry and music.

Each of the professors receiving grants were required to submit a detailed proposal to the research council which evaluated the suggested study.

The maximum amount which the council may award for a single project is $1,000. Two of the 15 professors, Dr. Gary Lowell of the earth science department and Herbert Pinnick Jr. of the chemistry department, received awards in that amount.

The next highest amount, $880, went to Dr. Harley Rutledge, head of the physics department, to enable him to continue his study of strange lights in the skies of Southeast Missouri.

Other awards were given to Dr. Mangho Ahuja, mathematics, $250; Wayne Hoover and Robert Johnson, education- psychology, $480; Dr. Sarah Sitton, education-psychology, $360; Dr. Russell Kullberg, biology, $725; Louis Unfer, earth science, $450; Dr. B. Ray Knox, earth science, $996; Gerold Thompson, social science, $240; Dr. J. Christopher Schnell, history, $605.83; Dr. B. Gene Ramsey, history, $489.30; Dr. Joseph Werne, history, $796; and Dr. Robert Jones, music, $540.

Besides Dr. Harte, other members of the University Research Council are Dr. George Suggs, Dr. Fred Snider, Dr. Bert Kellerman, Dr. John Shelton, Dr. Harold Hager, Dr. George Counts and Mrs. Janice Nunnelle.

Southeast Missouri State also has a Graduate Faculty Grant Program, primary purpose of which is to encourage scholarly activity which will benefit the university's graduate program. It is separate from the University Research Council.

Hewitt elected to Who's Who

CAPE GIRARDEAU — James Lee Hewitt, a 1966 graduate of Morehouse High School and industrial arts instructor at Dexter, has been elected to Who's Who Among Students in American Vocational and Technical Schools in recognition of outstanding merit and accomplishment as a student in the Department of Industrial and Technical Education at Southeast Missouri State University.

He was nominated by the ITE departmental staff on the basis of the following eligibility criteria: Scholastic excellence in career courses studied, participation and leadership in civic activities, citizenship and service to his school and potential for future achievement.

A certificate was presented and his name will appear in the Who's Who book.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James C. Hewitt of Morehouse and a 1970 graduate of Southeast Missouri State. He worked as an engineering draftsman for Amax Aluminum Extrusion products in St. Charles, Ill., Anchor Toy Corp., in Sikeston and for the Printing Service of Southeast Missouri State University.

On campus, Hewitt was active in the Industrial Education Club, Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity, Student Senate, and the Inter-fraternity Council.

Presently, he is studying for a master's degree.

Mayors challenge Nixon commitment

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon's continued commitment to the New Federalism concept of sharing federal powers and dollars with the cities faces a challenge from the nation's mayors.

The U.S. Conference of Mayors, dominated by Democrats, was expected to adopt a resolution today declaring that the promises of the New Federalism haven't yet been fulfilled.

The measure, with companion proposals, calls on the administration and Congress to follow through with acceptable amounts of federal aid for second-step New Federalism programs such as mass transit and housing.

The measure also demands that Congress enforce its pledge to challenge Nixon on future impoundment of appropriated funds for urban programs.

Mayor Henry W. Maier of Milwaukee said he thought the President had undercut the New Federalism by impoundment of urban programs funds Congress appropriated.

"The burglary of the budget is much more serious than the burglary of the Democratic national headquarters," said Maier, president of the newly formed National Conference of Democratic Mayors.

The five-day conference, with about 350 mayors on hand, concludes with today's business session and the expected election of San Francisco's Joseph L. Alioto as the new conference president.

The overriding theme has been that the first step of the New Federalism, general revenue sharing, has been good in concept but that inflation has offset its promise by eating into city budgets.

The mayors are asking for early re-enactment of general revenue sharing, at least a year before the current program expires at the end of 1976.

In private meetings with the mayors, the administration communicated that assurance through Nixon's chief domestic adviser, Kenneth R. Cole Jr.

But of more urgent interest to the mayors is congressional passage, and Nixon approval, of two massive second-step New Federalism programs: The $11.3 billion housing and community development bill and an $18 billion, five-year mass transit program.

Cole and other administration officials warned the mayors in advance, however, not to expect to get all the money they want.

Housing Secretary James T. Lynn told the conference Tuesday he is sympathetic with the mayor's desires and understands their feeling that the money is there—by trimming the defense budget.

But Lynn said inflation is the overriding issue and that to hope for diversion of defense funds is unrealistic.

Missouri residents receive preference to UMKC schools

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Officials of the University of Missouri-Kansas City law and dental schools have advised state legislators that Missouri residents receive preference for admission to their schools.

Deans H. B. G. Robinson of the dental school and Patrick D. Kelley of the law school told a special House appropriations subcommittee Tuesday the annual admissions to the two professional schools are composed mainly of state residents.

The subcommittee began its hearings into the admission procedures at state-supported professional schools after various legislators received complaints about out-of-state applicants being favored for admission to professional schools supported by state tax dollars.

"We're not on a witch hunt," said committee chairman Gene Copeland, D-New Madrid, "we're a fact-finding committee. We never want you to take a student that's not qualified, but we have to answer to those people, the people of Missouri."

Copeland said officials from the UMKC nursing and medical schools will also appear before the committee as well as those from the University of Missouri's Columbia's professional schools.

The majority of complaints about lack of preference for admission of qualified in-state applicants concerned the medical and law schools at Columbia, he said.

Robinson told the committee that more than 100 of the 160 students admitted each year to the dental school are from Missouri while Kelly pointed out that the admission requirements weighted in favor of the state residents have cause the annual admissions to the law school to include 85 per cent state residents.

Robinson also said that he has had a good relationship with both the governor and the state legislature, involving no pressure concerning the way the school is operating, and he commented," I wish others were as understanding as the legislators."

Committee members lauded the dental school's practice of personally interviewing potential students before deciding whether to accept them, and suggested that the UMKC law school institute a similar practice rather than relying on grades and test scores alone.

The committee, also concerned with the fact that in an effort to recruit minority students some more highly qualified non-minority students are turned away, asked for statistical information on applications and admissions to the law school.

The subcommittee will make its report to the House Appropriations Committee before December, Copeland said.

Although the Appropriations Committee has no direct control over admissions policies at the schools, he commented, "we appropriate money to operate these schools and we want to make sure that the taxpayers money is not being misspent."

Oil swindle takes famous people for $130 million

NEW YORK (AP) — Top show business personalities, business magnates and bigname lawyers were among victims of a $100-million oil-drilling swindle, the Wall Street Journal said today.

The newspaper said it may be the biggest swindle of its kind in history.

Investors sank about $130 million in it and all but $30 million went astray, the newspaper said. The Securities and Exchange Commission called it a "Ponzi scheme," in which the swindlers pay off early investors with money from more recent investors.

Show business investors identified by the newspaper and the amounts they invested included Andy Williams $538,000, Jack Benny $300,000, Rock singer David Cassidy $300,000, Walter Mathau $200,000 and Liza Minnelli $231,000.

Businessmen who had a major stake included Fred J. Borch, former chairman of General Electric Co., $440,920; Walter B. Wriston, chairman of the First National City Bank, $211,000; Russell W. McFall, chairman and president of Western Union, $394,000; John G. Martin, executive committee chairman of Heublein Co., $361,000, and Ralph A. Hart, director and former chairman of Heublein, $322,000.

Lawyers included Henry J. Fox of Washington, $108,500; Earl W. Kintner of Washington, $127,000; and Richard S. Storrs, $115,000.

The newspaper said the case centers on Home-Stake Production Co., a Tulsa, Okla., tax shelter oil-drilling company, which the SEC declared insolvent last September and is investigating.

The trustee in Home-Stake's bankruptcy and four groups of investors have filed suits in federal and state courts in Tulsa accusing the principals of wrong-doing, the Journal said. At least one federal grand jury is expected to convene soon, in Los Angeles or in New York, according to the newspaper.

Oklahoma oil lawyer Robert S. Trippet, who founded HomeStake in 1955 and ran it until he resigned last summer, has consented to a court injunction against securities law violations without admitting or denying any charges by the SEC, the Journal said. The newspaper said he claims he acted in good faith in raising money for oildrilling and warned investors that it was risky.

The Journal said Harvey L. Garland, operations manager for Home-Stake in the late 1960s, said it drilled five wells on a vegetable farm near Santa Marta, Calif., and to make things look more impressive got permission from the farmer to paint some of his irrigation pipes orange and code them with oil-field markings.

Garland said there was one legitimate 3,500-foot well and at least three dry 500-foot holes.

Egypt will defend Lebanon against raids

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Egypt is prepared to send its air force to defend Lebanon against Israeli air raids, even at the risk of another Middle East war, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat was quoted today as saying.

"I shall also make it a point that President Nixon is made to realize we shall not remain inactive toward Israeli attacks on Palestinian refugee camps in Lebanon," Sadat said in an interview published by the Beirut magazine As Sayyad.

Israeli artillery shelled the Lebanese village of Jouaya 12 miles from the Israeli-Lebanese border Tuesday night and preliminary reports said there were heavy losses.

The shelling was apparently in retaliation for the Palestinian guerrilla attack on the Israeli town of Nahariyya Monday night, in which an Israeli woman, her two children and an Israeli soldier—as well as the three Arab raiders—were killed.

Meanwhile in Jerusalem, police said two bazooka rockets set to be fired by a timing device were discovered early today in a field in the suburb of Ramat Eshkol. Security forces exploded the rockets and no one was hurt.

Sadat in the interview said he made the pledge last week in a letter to Lebanese President Suleiman Franjieh after Israel's air force attacked Palestinian guerrilla positions in refugee camps in southern Lebanon. The guerrillas said 34 persons were killed.

Lebanese Arab press reports said Sadat had offered to station five squadrons of Egyptian MIG21 interceptors in Lebanon. Syria also reportedly offered to supply Lebanon with mobile and shoulder-fired antiaircraft missiles.

The Lebanese government has made no comment on the reports, presumably waiting the outcome of a conference of Arab defense and foreign ministers opening in Cairo Monday.

Israeli Information Minister Aharon Yariv said in Jerusalem the support of Egypt and other Arab countries for Palestinian terrorism was endangering the American peace effort.

Sadat also told As Sayyad that the Soviet Union stopped arms deliveries to Egypt immediately after the October war, "but we have since been getting modern weapons from other sources" which he did not disclose.

Sadat added that he had invited Soviet Communist party chief Leonid Brezhnev to meet with him in Cairo "because I am not prejudiced and have no complex about my relations with the Soviets ...."

Hill presented special PCA service award

Gordon Hill, assistant vice president of Sikeston Production Credit Association, in charge of the Sikeston unit, was presented a special PCA silver award by Federal Intermediate Credit Bank president T. R. McGuire at the 21st annual Missouri PCA fieldmen's conference June 17-18 at the Ramada Inn in Columbia.

Others attending from Sikeston were Mrs. Hill, Ken Walters, Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Wright, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Williams and Mr. and Mrs. Wallace E. Waters.

McGuire spoke about the future of farm credit, and Wally McGinnis, president of the Missouri Young Farmers organization, told the credit men how the young farmers need credit assistance and how credit should be marketed to young farmers.

Others on the program were: Dr. Don R. Webb, professor of marketing, University of Missouri, and Dr. Gus Economos, director of Graduate School of Business and chairman of Department of Marketing at DePaul University in Greencastle, Ind.

Hill was recognized for meritorious service to his unit and all phases of its services.

In presenting the award, McGuire pointed out that Hill has been a PCA employe for 15 years and his office loaned $12,660,079 during 1973. No charge- offs were made, and the unit made strides in other fields of credit life insurance, crop hail insurance and records, McGuire added.

This was the first year the award has been presented, and plans are to continue it each year.

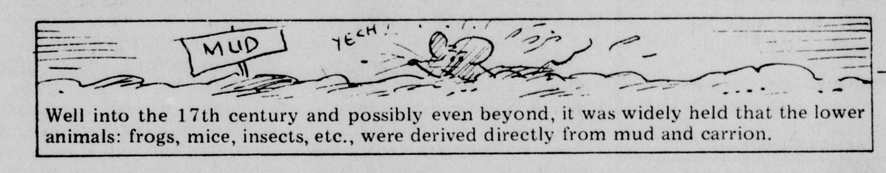
Calling a spade an instrument for manual excavation is what keeps a lot of political hacks pulling down a check.



Well into the 17th century and possibly even beyond, it was widely held that the lower animals: frogs, mice, insects, etc., were derived directly from mud and carrion.

'Three Musketeers' premiers Friday

Adventure, action, love, chivalry, excitement, scope and realism are all important elements in director Richard Lester's new all- star film of Alexander Dumas's "The Three Musketeers", premiering Friday at Malco Twin Cinema II in Midtowner Village Shopping Center.

Humor, however, is the key to Lester's version of the cloak and sword extravaganza. The wit of the film comes directly from the novel, highlighting the satire and sophisticated comedy of the era.

The version of the novel most people recall reading is actually a children's edition — one that sacrifices the biting wit of the entire 700- page book for slice upon slice of adventure.

Filling the roles in the greatest swashbuckler of them all are Charlton Heston, Faye Dunaway, Raquel Welsh, Oliver Reed, Richard Chamberlain, Frank Finlay, Michael York, Christopher Lee and Geraldine Chaplin.

Mystery shopper winners named

Gary McKown, John W. Pipkin and Ike Pope were named winners of Gates Mystery Shopper Awards and Dean Pipkin received a Gates Mystery Car Award for outstanding customer service of Gates Rubber Co. of Denver, Colo.

McKown operates Auto Tire and Parts Co., 330 N. Main St. John Pipkin is an employe of Twitty Farm Equipment in Lilbourn, and Pope operates Auto Tire and Parts Co. in Morehouse. Dean Pipkin works at Winters MFA Station in Kewanee.

Mystery shopper and mystery car awards are presented to service station personnel and Gates parts jobbers who show exceptional customer service to a "secret" Gates representative.

The awards are plaques bearing three Eisenhower dollars and two Kennedy half-dollars.

Name chosen for state park

JEFFERSON CITY — Finger Lakes State Park has been chosen as the name for Missouri's newest state park seven miles north of Columbia and east of U.S. 63, James L. Wilson, state parks director, announced.

The new name was selected because the 1,028-acre park, a former strip mine area, contains numerous water-filled strip pits which have formed elongated lakes resembling fingers.

The Missouri State Park Board intends to build a series of dams connecting some of the finger lakes for a three-mile canoe waterway, Wilson said. The park also will be developed for motorcycle trail riding. Other recreation development will permit fishing, swimming, scuba diving, camping, picnicking, hiking, nature study and horseback riding.

Once the site of an active coal mine, the property was deeded to the state on Dec. 6, 1973 by Peabody Coal Co. of St. Louis.

It has been designated a national demonstration project for outdoor recreation by the U.S. Department of Interior's Bureau of Outdoor Recreation (BOR), and is the only such demonstration park in BOR's 10-state mid-continent region.

The State Park Board has received $102,000 in federal matching monies equal to the value of the land from BOR's Land and Water Conservation Fund for park development.

Wilson said the park will be opened officially to the public later this year after access roads and parking areas are completed.

Finger Lakes State Park will be the site of a Sept. 14-15 motor cross being planned by the State Park Board as a feature event of its 50th anniversary this year.

The area is the 34th state park in Missouri.

World News in Brief

BRUSSELS (AP) — President Nixon paused today in his "journey for peace" to the Moscow summit to sign the new Atlantic Alliance declaration and confer with the leaders of America's chief European allies. The declaration approved last week at the spring meeting of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization formalizes a pledge that the United States will consult NATO's 14 other members before staking out new policies. After the signing by Nixon and heads of the other allied governments, the American President was to brief his allies about his Moscow trip at a closed-door session.

LONDON (AP) — Britain has been getting "more than its fair share" of the Arabs' new oil money, a high-ranking government source reported today. One authoritative estimate put the amount at $3 billion since the first of the year. Treasury and Bank of England sources confirmed that key Arab oil states—Saudi Arabia, Kuwait and Bahrain are among those mentioned—are pouring money into the country. Several countries appear to be funneling money in through intermediaries, including commercial banks, to invest in the depressed property market and stocks in British companies, now at a 15-year low.

SAIGON (AP) — Viet Cong sappers moving under the cover of a rocket and mortar attack blasted their way into a South Vietnamese special forces training center 20 miles east of Saigon before dawn today, the military command reported. A spokesman said the intruders blew up five barracks, killing seven government soldiers and wounding 28. One Viet Cong was killed and one was captured, the command said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Judiciary Committee has voted to make public most of the evidence it has received in secret impeachment hearings during the past seven weeks. When it will be released remains unclear but some members say all evidence relating to the Watergate cover-up, including the committee's versions of White House tapes, could be made public in a few days.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jury selection is beginning in the trial of former White House domestic affairs chief John D. Ehrlichman and three others accused of illegally attempting to gather psychiatric information about Daniel Ellsberg. U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell has said the question before the jury will be whether the defendants plotted to violate the rights of Ellsberg's psychiatrist, Dr. Lewis Fielding of Beverly Hills, Calif.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some key Pentagon officials are concerned that sharing certain U.S. technology with Russia under the detente policy could impair national security. Officials are worried mostly about the transfer of critical advanced computer technology, which has military as well as civilian application. Also bothering defense officials is the possibility that the Russians might be helped to gain ground in the field of micro-electronics.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A medical study has produced new evidence suggesting a high incidence of death from a rare liver cancer among factory employes working with vinyl chloride, a chemical widely used in the plastics industry. A study of vinyl chloride workers at the Goodyear plant in Niagara Falls, N.Y., found that three of 24 deaths were due to the cancer angiosarcoma.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Watergate committee is reported ready to release its vice chairman's secret report on possible CIA involvement on the Watergate break-in and cover-up. The move came after CIA Director William E. Colby asked Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., to make only minor deletions in Baker's 35-page investigative report. Baker has hinted for months that the report contains significant new information.

KIBBUTZ IN NEW ZEALAND?

WELLINGTON, New Zealand (AP) — New Zealand's labor government is considering establishing two Israel-type kibbutzim on undeveloped land.

Prime Minister Norman E. Kirk told a news conference he was looking for a New Zealand word, possibly a Maori one, to describe them.

"There are signs that many young people are feeling disillusioned with society because they are not participating in its development," Kirk said. "By establishing kibbutzim we will be telling these young people: Here is a settlement, let's see what you can do out of the wilderness.'"

In Saturday's edition of The Daily Standard, it was reported that a suit seeking a total of $485,000 in damages had been filed by Saveway Oil Co. and Edgar and Nadine Barnhill against Mrs. Louise Moreton, Economy Oil Co. Inc. and Sears Roebuck and Co. in connection with a fire on Feb. 11 which destroyed the Fina service station and restaurant near Wyatt.

The article failed to clarify that punitive damages of $50,000 was sought by Saveway Oil Co. from Sears Roebuck and Co. in the first suit. The oil company also sought punitive damages of $50,000 from Sears Roebuck in a second suit.

In the first suit, actual damages of $200,000 are being sought by the plaintiff from Mrs. Moreton, Economy Oil Co. and Sears Roebuck and Co. In the second suit, the plaintiffs are seeking $185,000 actuall damages from Mrs. Moreton, Economy Oil Co. and Sears Roebuck.

CONFIDENCE

The confidence and trust which a community has in a funeral service is something that takes many years to build. Indeed, the firm foundation upon which our funeral home rests was solidified over a period of generations. ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals are back atop the National League East but not without a struggle.

Manager Red Schoendienst shuffled 20 players, including six pitchers, into the lineup Tuesday night and watched a late rally tip the Pittsburgh Pirates 8-7.

So thin were Redbird ranks at the finish that left-hander John Curtis, a starting pitcher, finished in relief.

And Schoendienst, whose club moved a percentage point ahead of the Philadelphia Phils, admitted Sonny Siebert would have been next "If we'd gotten in any more trouble."

The 37 - year - old Siebert, 7-4, is scheduled to pitch tonight as the Cards attempt to cap a four-game sweep of the fifth- place Bucs.

Pittsburgh Manager Danny Murtaugh, whose team has lost eight of nine to St. Louis, has nominated hard- luck left- hander Jim Rooker, 3-6, to try to become the stopper.

Curtis, 4-7 as a starter, and two eighth- inning hitters who failed to bunt were among key Cardinal figures Tuesday night.

"When they told Siebert to go down to the bullpen I told Red I felt good enough to go an inning," related Curtis, who volunteered for the relief.

"I'd been throwing about 20 minutes anyway ahead of my next start," he added. "I felt like I had a lot left and it ought to be out to use."

Curtis succeeded where four of five predecessors had failed and set the Pirates down on only Ed Kirkpatrick's single in the ninth.

Ahead of the respite a wild eighth inning included four Pirate runs for a 7-6 lead which was overcome by a Cardinal counter- attack.

Ken Reith led off the winning burst with his second single and Mike Tyson, after failing to sacrifice, doubled home pinchrunner Jack Heidemann.

Ted Sizemore was then also supposed to bunt but failed and singled on the infield setting up a winning hit by Lou Brock.

"That's one time when two bunt attempts failed and paid off," observed Cards Coach Vern Benson. "You never know in this game what's going to happen."

Attesting to the fact was Pittsburgh's Al Oliver, whose single and two doubles drove in four runs and produced the only Pirate lead.

"It really hurts to lose a game like this after battling back," he conceded, "but the game's gone now. All we can do is try again tomorrow."

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds, who brag of never having had a playing date rained out in Riverfront Stadium, said Tuesday no future games will be delayed more than 20 minutes with the addition of Big Red Machine II.

The machines vacuum water off the astroturf surface once the rain stops. "With this new machine," said Terry Barthelmas, director of stadium operations, "we'll be able to do a complete blowoff of the water in less than 20 minutes."

Since moving into the stadium in June 1970, Cincinnati has not had a date rained out. However, the second game of a doubleheader July 18, 1971 was canceled by continued rains.

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — The University of Arizona baseball team has been invited to participate in the Haarlem Baseball Week in The Netherlands next month, Coach Jerry Kindall said Tuesday.

Kindall said he will take a 16- man squad to the tournament, leaving Los Angeles July 8. The team will play an exhibition game in West Germany July 10 before going to Holland for the July 12-21 tournament, he said.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Defensive tackle Bill Sandifer of UCLA, a second-round choice of the San Francisco 49ers in the National Football League draft, underwent surgery at St. Mary's Hospital here Tuesday for repair of a torn knee ligament.

Sandifer was injured in the fourth quarter of the Coaches All-America game at Lubbock, Tex., Saturday night.

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Manager George "Sparky" Anderson, cheered by a 3-2 Reds victory, was reported resting comfortably today after being hospitalized with persistent back and neck pains.

Anderson flew to Cincinnati from Houston Tuesday night.

In his absence, third base coach Alex Grammas has taken over.

Lawrence fashions 1-hitter

A fifth inning hit by M. Silverthorn spoiled the upset and shutout bid of Nowell's Lawrence in Jr. Babe Ruth action Tuesday night. Nowell defeated Elliott- Newton 4-1 and IBEW took Davis and Bird 7-4.

Lawrence fanned 12 and walked six in his seven innings of work and connected for a key double during a big four run fifth.

Barnett doubled twice and picked up the victory from the mound, fanning seven and walking one as IBEW held off a late game bid by D&B.

Keller had two of D&B's hits, one a double and Greer banged out a two bagger for the only extra base hits of the game.

Deer season Nov. 16-24

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The state conservation commission announced Tuesday a nine- day deer season from Nov. 16-24, which will include various changes from the past.

One of the most significant changes, the commission said, will be the division of the east central area of Missouri into two management units. That division, which will increase the number of state management units from 10 to 11, is due to the fact that the east central area has portions with both too many and too few deer, the commission said.

There also will be a quota of 1,200 antlerless deer permits this fall, another change from the past. The commission said that change is intended to limit the harvest of those animals.

In addition, the commission said a primitive weapons hunt has been added to the list of special and managed deer hunts for this year.

That events, involving muzzleloaders, crossbows and archery, will be held Oct. 12-14 at the Sam A. Baker State Park.

Evans spoils no-hitter

Evans spoiled Milton's no-hit bid in American Little League play Tuesday night, but Ryan did get a shutout, blanking Ziegenhorn 10-0. Nunnelee rallied for a 17-6 win over Caproco in the other league encounter.

Ryan had to go only four innings to make easy work of their opponents, pounding out 10 hits and getting extra base hits from Bickford and Rice. Bickford doubled and homered while Rice doubled and led Ryan's 10 hit assault with three safeties.

K. Howard homered, doubled and had three hits to pace Nunnelee's five inning victory.

Nunnelee fell behind 5-1 after the first inning and didn't overcome that margin until the fifth when they scored five and then scored eight more the next two frames to bring the game to an end after five innings. Beasley picked up the win.

Meeker tripled for the losers, who were led in the hitting department by Richardson and Twin with two hits apiece.

Pitchers NL standouts

Blow and Malcolm rules the National Little League circuit Tuesday night with their pitching arms. Blow hurled Pizza Inn to a two-hit, 10-0 four inning romp of A&B Oil while the Jaycees hustled to an 8-5 win over Legion behind the three hit performance of Malcolm.

The Inn opened the game with four runs in the last of the first and breezed through the four inning affair as Moyers was the only A&B player to get to the Inn's hurler, collecting both of his teams hits. Jerry Laseter and Lane paced the winners hitting with two hits apiece.

Despite the home run slugging of Tope, the Jaycees rallied from a 5-4 deficit with a four run fifth inning uprising for the win. Malcolm aided his own cause with a key double and went two for three at the plate while teammate, Glidwell had a perfect night with two hits in two trips to the plate.

Reds, Dodgers lead star vote

NEW YORK (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds and Los Angeles Dodgers, rivals for the National League's West Division crown, are on the verge of sewing up seven of eight possible starting spots on the National League squad for major league baseball's All-Star game.

Figures released Monday by Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn's office show the Reds are leading in the race for four positions and the Dodgers three. With only two weeks of balloting remaining, all of the leaders appear assured of starting berths.

Cincinnati's Pete Rose follows Aaron in the race among outfielders with 571,231 votes while Jimmy Wynn of Los Angeles is third with 497,232.

Catcher Johnny Bench, first baseman Tony Perez and second baseman Joe Morgan are the other Reds heading for starting spots. Bench, second to Aaron in over-all votes, was named on 812,684 ballots with runner-up Joe Ferguson of Los Angeles polling 242,013.

Perez has 319,640 votes to 287,022 for Bill Buckner of Los Angeles, and Morgan is a runaway leader at his position, topping Philadelphia's Dave Cash, 519,836 to 372,694.

Third baseman Ron Cey and shortstop Bill Russell are the other Dodger leaders. Cey has 470,651 votes to 305,013 for Pittsburgh's Richie Hebner. Russell leads Cincinnati's Dave Concepcion, 402,890 to 303,949.

Balloting ends July 8 for the classic, scheduled for July 23 at Pittsburgh's Three Rivers Stadium.

Piel claims duffers title

Eric Piel of Sikeston came away with first place in the championship class of this year's Jaycee Duffers Golf Tournament at Sikeston Country Club, receiving the traveling trophy from last year's tournament winner, Harry White of Sikeston.

John Handon of Delta made a hole in one on the 150- yard- sixth hole.

Others winners were Darrell Stohart of Sikeston in A class; A. J. Layton of Sikeston, B class; Bob Matthews of Sikeston, C class; and Larry Burden of Sikeston, first in the cheaters class.

Senator Hearnes? No decision

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This feature appeared in a recent issue of the Charleston Enterprise-Courier.)

By Raymond Krogh

Warren Hearnes practices law in the same Charleston building that housed his childhood doctor. In his third floor office an American Flag sits at the right side of his desk, a Missouri Flag at the left. Cigar in hand, he takes phone calls from Missourians who want to talk to "the Governor" about this or that complaint.

Five times elected to the Missouri Legislature from Mississippi County, later Secretary of State and eventually the first Governor of Missouri ever to succeed himself, Hearnes has been a private citizen since Christopher Bond took over as Governor in January of 1973.

He now divides his time between St. Louis and Charleston law practices, driving up to St. Louis on Monday, and back to Charleston on Wednesday nights. In his smartly decorated Charleston law office Hearnes talked about whether or not he had reached a decision on running for the U. S. Senate in 1976.

"It's 'way too early for that," he says. The announcement, one way or another, will come in 1975. "Now whether it will be April or December, I wouldn't want to pin myself down," Hearnes says, "but I think a person has to make up his mind and begin to move."

If Hearnes does run for office, the political arena should be a good deal easier for him to re-enter than for a novice, because, while he has left political office, he has not left politics.

An annual Democratic fund raising dinner, celebrating the birthdays of Hearnes and his wife Betty is being held, next month, this year and for the first time away from Jefferson City, at the Ramada Inn in Miner. Proceeds from previous dinners, stretching back to 1964 have gone to the Democratic State Committee. This year the money will go to Democratic campaigns in Missouri.

Hearnes says since it is not in Jefferson City, this year's dinner is "kind of an experiment," but feels there will be a good turnout nevertheless. The guest speaker for the dinner is Democratic National Chairman, Robert Strauss of Texas.

Speakers for the dinners have usually been political heavyweights. Last year the key speaker was Washington Senator Henry "Scoop" Jackson, whom Hearnes supported for the 1972 Presidential nomination after Muskie dropped out.

Hearnes says planning for the dinner is shaping up nicely this year with none of the rancor over the program which marred the planning stages of the '73 dinner. "You had a lot of chiefs running it last year and not many Indians," he said, adding that the dinner came off well despite its initial troubles.

Hearnes also keeps politically active in his role as Missouri's Democratic National Committeeman. In this capacity, he has been openly critical of the organizational rules of the 1972 Democratic convention, which sent more women and minority delegates to the convention than previously, but also factionalized the Democratic Party.

He said last year that the application of predetermined guidelines for selection of delegates did not work in '72 and called then for a system of "representative democracy," ather than the "participatory democratcy," under which he said '72 convention delegates had been chosen.

Though no final system of delegate selection has been decided upon for the 1976 convention, Hearnes is not happy with the way things look. "They have not as yet reached a selection process which doesn't lend itself to chaos and uncertainty and hard feelings. They may before '76. They haven't yet." Hearnes voted against the tentative rules by which the delegates are selected in '76, we'll have a real fragmented convention. You'll have a lot of candidates with a few votes," Hearnes said.

If he does get back into politics, it is doubtful that Hearnes will go, even as a delegate to the '76 convention. "You can't run but one campaign at a time," he says, "I went in '68, but at that time I didn't have any primary opposition and I could afford the luxury of taking the time off. But if I ran for Senator in '76, about the time they had that convention, I'd be wearing out the shoe leather."

One dark spot that has recently appeared on Hearnes' political horizon is the Federal Grand Jury investigation of the activities of his former campaign manager, Delton Houtchens.

The grand jury is looking into charges of influence peddling during the Hearnes administration. The allegations against Houtchens are that businesses which were "public relations" clients of a company Houtchens owned had state contracts awarded to them because of Houtchens' political clout.

The St. Louis Globe - Democrat reported in April, for instance, that the William T. Collins Shows Inc. were awarded contracts for the Missouri State Fair during the Hearnes administration while using Houtchens' company for public relations work.

The Globe- Democrat has also reported that the grand jury is looking into charges that there were "politically favored banks," during the Hearnes administration.

"The impression the Globe - Democrat gives in the story on Houtchens is that he was a public official when he wasn't.

How do you correct something like that?" Hearnes said. Of the grand jury investigation he says "They investigate Democratic dinners. I've never heard of them investigating any Republican dinners. In other words, I think there's a lot of politics going on in Kansas City."

Hearnes occasionally uses the word "politics" in this sense. Meaning, not the public decision - making process, but the struggle of one party to gain hegemony over another by shaping public opinion.

"As long as it's going to be politics, we might as well have open debates rather than closed grand jury proceedings," said Hearnes, who doesn't like the grand jury system in general. "I think a person ought to be represented by an attorney under the protection of a judge to rule on the relevancy or irrelevancy of evidence. All of the things that go with what we call the Constitution of the United States." If a person is indicted by a grand jury and later exonerated, Hearnes says, he is never REALLY exonerated.

Hearnes says he has no right to give opinions on Houtchens' alleged offenses. "It's really not up to me to form a judgment on who a person should take as a client. Some people might not like some of the clients I have now -- that my firm has," Hearnes said. "Houtchens was and is a private citizen. If he had been my director of revenue or my Agriculture Commissioner or something like that, I would have a right to sit in judgment.

He wasn't in the state's employ. And he drew no salary from the Democratic Party."

Even in light of the charges against Houtchens, Hearnes doesn't feel that the moralistic political atmosphere left by Watergate will hurt him much. "I think just the fact that you've held public office would be enough to taint you in the minds of the voters," Hearnes said, adding that Watergate has accented the bad feelings towards former office holders, but that nothing qualitatively has changed from previous years.

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat has consistently given front- page coverage to stories relating to the Houtchens matter. In a year in which the Republican Party is scandal - ridden to its elbows, some maintain the Republican - oriented Globe is grasping at straws in the Houtchesn case in an effort to find corruption in Democratic ranks.

While Hearnes says he is certain the Globe would like to find a Democratic corruption scandal in order to help the Republican fortunes in '74, he says he wouldn't criticize the Globe more than any other newspaper. He adds, however, that in his opinion, there has been a concentrated effort to give the impression that Houtchens was a government employe. Hearnes says this effort was "started from Jefferson City,' and has been "aided and abetted by newspaper reporters."

In his final speech before it as Governor, Hearnes urged the Missouri Legislature to eliminate the personal property tax on household goods and stressed the need for comprehensive reorganization of state government. Both proposals have been made into law under the Bond administration.

Hearnes is pleased with the Legislature's repeal of parts of the personal property tax. "What we had in the personal property tax on household goods made liars out of everybody. I think what the Democratic Legislature did was the best thing that could have been done."

Hearnes feels however that a long period of time will be needed to judge the virtues or faults of the reorganization bill enacted by the Legislature. "Talking about reorganizing state government," Hearnes says, "is like being against sin and for motherhood. The proof's in the pudding and you have to wait."

Hearnes is skeptical of how the Bond administration is adapting to the changes that will be brought by reorganization. Hearnes cited Bond's desire to make all new appointments in the state government. 'Now this is a man who says he's against patronage. Hearnes said "The idea of hold-over appointments is that no one Governor controls all the boards. That was the idea anyway of the writers of the Constitution. Well, he's trying to under reorganization, do away with all of them and reappoint them, and I know the Legislature did not intend for that to happen. So we'll have to see how that will come out."

Hearnes has taken special pride in his administration's accomplishments in the areas of educational and mental health support. He feels however, that the Bond administration has fallen short in follow-up support for those programs. Hearnes says Bond is "worried too much about '76 and not enough about the problems that his budget cuts in those areas have caused.

Of the Bond administration in general, Hearnes says "There are little things that people should know about. Not big enough to form a complete opinion on an administration, but interesting things, humorous things. I can remember in 1970 the Republicans adopted their platform and called upon me to immediately sell the airplane that I was using. Well, he not only has the same airplane but has bought three more. They have taken over a complete hangar and hired a dispatcher."

Hearnes' stock reponse to the stock question about how he likes practicing law rather than being in politics is, "I'm making more money but enjoying it less."

Time will tell if law practice remains the ex-governor's work or is remembered by him only as a breathing space between races.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Sirs,
Please print my poem.
Thank you
Lisa Rosien

LET ME BE THERE WITH YOU!

Let me be there with you,
so I'm no longer blue.
I want you always to be with me,
Oh, can't you see.
We can make it,
Without any trouble, not even one little bit.
You can be mine
if you'll say so before I am behind.
We won't quarrel or fight
and oh I'll love you with all my might
If I just knew what to say,
but all I can say is I loved you before today
But I was so blue
So let me be there with you!

Owners fight bottomland destruction

STOCKTON, Mo. (AP) — "They're just a bunch of landgrabbers ... they're not going to get it," said Dean Dawes.

The 35-year-old farmer has lived nearly all his life on a hill overlooking the Sac River in southwest Missouri and the "it" he was talking about is a 120-acre bottomland field which he owns, rents and tills.

The Army's district engineer in Kansas City has forwarded up the chain of command a recommendation that the government buy 2,500 acres or more along 16 miles of the river below Stockton Dam.

The turbine in the dam is designed to generate up to almost 52,000 kilowatts of electricity, spewing out water at up to 11,000 cubic feet per second. But when they first tried it in November of 1972, the Army Engineers discovered that the bankfull Sac can carry off only about 5,100 cubic feet a second, and that only in short bursts of six to eight hours a day.

Ever since that first trial run wrought havoc along the 16 miles to Caplinger Mills, Mo., and indicated there would be more trouble for another five miles down the river, many of the landowners have been fighting the engineers with recriminations.

Clark I. Montgomery said the notification of the decision to buy up the bottomland was typical.

Montgomery didn't get one of the 68 letters addressed to landowners by Col. W.R. Needham, the district engineer in Kansas City. He owns, manages or rents out about 2,500 acres for members of his family, so his father got one — with the wrong initials. The post office people in Stockton, official population 1,063, recognized Montogmery's relationship with some of the other addresses, and he forwarded them to such places as Aurora, Mo., and Vinita, Okla.

Montgomery, his wife and a couple from St. Louis who are long-time friends, took a sixhour float trip down the Sac on Sunday from a highway bridge just below the dam to another about half way to Caplinger Mills.

"There has been a lot more erosion, and there are a lot more trees in the river since last year," Montgomery said. "I'm no engineer, but it looks to me like they could come in there with a drag line and in very little time straighten it out and open it up so it could handle the water."

Enlarging the channel was one of the options rejected by Col. Needham when he decided to recommend that the government buy the bottomland. He figured the cost at over $5.7 million and expressed a doubt that the environmentalists would never stand for it.

The estimated cost of buying the land, figuring an average of $600 an acre on other expenses, is estimated at $2,925,000 between the dam and Caplinger Mills.

Col. Needham said he had carefully considered the complaints of the landowners.

"However, I must act in behalf of all the citizens of the United States."

Montgomery acted upon the line in a quick letter he got off Monday to Sen. Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo., and other members of the state's delegation in Congress.

" ... the steel worker in Gary, Indiana ... the taxi driver in Houston ... the coal miner in Kentucky ... the real estate dealer in suburban Los Angeles ... ghetto dwellers in inner cities — what we'd like to know is who is acting on behalf of all the landowners along the Sac River?" Montgomery wrote.

Dean Dawes didn't get a letter either, but his invalid father did. As in Montgomery's case, the land records at the Cedar County courthouse in Stockton haven't caught up with the fact that Dean bought the 185-acre farm from his father.

About 40 of those acres, along with 80 rented from Montgomery, make up what has become known as Keith's Island.

"My dad farmed that land for 23 straight years until his health got bad," Dawes said. "The rest of our farm is mostly hilly. That bottom field has always provided the feed for the livestock and the cash crop."

In all that time, the younger Dawes recounted, his father never had a complete crop failure because of flooding. He was able to save some of his corn or get in and sow a late crop or use it for pasture.

From November of 1972, when the engineers started their flow tests, until July 3, 1973, Dawes says he was never able to get to Keith's Island.

"I filed just a little claim for $4,000 in crop loss," he said. "The only thing I've ever heard from it was a one-paragraph letter 5½ weeks later saying they'd forwarded it to some place in Maryland."

Much of the time since the first burst of outrage from the landowners, the engineers have held the water discharge to around the 5,100 cubic feet per second which the Sac can handle in six-hour bursts.

Heavy rains in the spring of 1973 and the growing demand for power resulted in more flooding.

Last fall, when the discharges were limited to six hours a day and five days a week, Dean Dawes planted a wheat crop on Keith's Island.

A week ago Saturday, the wheat wasn't quite ready and Dean's father-in-law was using his combine in his own fields. The wheat was ready after the weekend, but the water was up again and the combine still wasn't available.

"Last Saturday we went in and got the wheat out," Dawes reported. "It ran 28 to 29 bushels to the acre and will figure out to about $8,000."

While the water was down for the weekend, Dean moved two tractors, two plows and a disc harrow onto the island.

He planned to put in a milo crop this week, hauling a boat across to the island each morning when the river was down so he could get back home in the evening when the daily discharge from the dam still was flowing high.

But Dean Dawes spent Sunday night getting the two tractors, the two plows and the disc harrow back from Keith's Island.

An acquaintance who works for the Corps of Engineers tipped him that at 7 a.m. Monday morning the dam would start disgorging its 5,100 cubic feet per second for 16 hours a day for about two weeks. The water would never recede enough for him to get too and from the island, and he figured two more weeks would be too late to plant milo.

"They really didn't warn anybody," Dawes said, "but the fellows at the power plant are very cooperative. They got the word from Kansas City on Friday."

The orders were to run the water 16 hours a day until the 25,000-acre lake on the north fringe of the Ozarks has been lowered about 3.6 feet to its normal power-pool level.

Dawes said the reason he heard is that the higher level was flooding and washing out the road loops through one or two camp grounds in the lake's public use areas.

Dawes thinks the engineers ought to re-design the generator so it can run effectively without discharging so much water.

"They haven't got enough water in that lake to keep it running at 8,000 cubic feet a second or 11,000 cubic feet a second for more than 35 or 40 days a year," he said.

After reading the letter, Dawes still could not bring himself to believe that the engineers would want to buy 2,500 acres and that it almost certainly would include all of Keith's Island.

At a public meeting with Col. Needham in Stockton on April 1, Dawes saw a rough map which he interpreted as indicating the government might want to buy all but 75 of his 185 acres, leaving him the farmstead and only marginally productive acres.

"There's not another place in the country I'd trade that bottomland for," he said.

"It will wipe out all the farmers who depend on bottomland. I feel pretty sick."

Frankly speaking

'Veterans deserve help in education'

Veterans have sacrificed a part of their lives for America. It's up to the rest of the Americans to show their appreciation for this sacrifice.

The U. S. Senate is trying to do this by increasing educational benefits so that for the first time Vietnam veterans would receive education benefits comparable to those granted World War II veterans.

I strongly support the bill which would accomplish this, the Vietnam Era Veterans' Readjustment Assistance Act of 1974.

First, to catch up with the soaring cost of living, the bill would increase the monthly educational allowance by 18.2 per cent. This means the monthly allowance for a full-time student would go up from $220 to $260. For a veteran with one dependent, the increase would be from $261 to $309, and for a vet with two dependents, the rise would be from $298 to $352.

Since the last increase, in September, 1972, the cost of living has risen 14.6 per cent. It is expected to go up to 18 per cent by the beginning of the school year. The least we can do is keep the benefits consistent with the cost of living.

Tuition Benefits

The bill would also make tuition allowances available for the first time to Vietnam era veterans. Each veteran would receive an allowance of 80 per cent of the annual tuition cost above $100, up to a maximum allowance of $720.

This, along with the monthly living allowance increase, should significantly help veterans. Previously, for example, a single veteran attending the University of Missouri would receive $1,980 for a 9- month living allowance. But he had to take $540 of this to cover the school's tuition. Under this bill, that student would receive $2,340 to live on plus $352, or 80 per cent of $440, to help pay tuition.

For students attending colleges with extra high tuitions, low- interest loans of up to $2,000 per year would be available.

More Time to Get Education

A recent survey of veterans in schools in Missouri and nine other states showed that 49.4 per cent would not be able to complete schooling within the normal four years or 36 months, because of the high costs of both living and education. The bill before the Senate would extend to 45 months, or another school year, the total amount of time a veteran could attend school and receive assistance. It would also extend from eight to 10 years the time during which a veteran could make use of the education benefits.

A total of 682,000 veterans live in Missouri -- 322,000 are World War II veterans snd 145,000 are Vietnam veterans. 153,000 have been eligible for educational benefits under the current GI Bill; 43.5 per cent of them have been taking advantage of that assistance. Slightly over half of that number have taken college courses while the rest have received vocational training or on-the-job training.

It's very possiblethe low benefits available predetermined for many Missouri veterans whether they would go on to college.

Education of a nation's young people is that nation's mainstay of strength. The Senate bill would go a long way toward equalizing the availability of education to veterans of the Vietnam era.

The following are recipes which were submitted for the Daily Standard's Fourth Annual Cookbook, but were omitted due to limited space.

The recipes listed for Mrs. Helen Currin of Charleston, Mrs. Mary Morgan of Dudley and Mrs. Louis F. Jones of New Madrid are from features in the cookbook.

CHESS PIE

1 cup butter
2 cups sugar
5 eggs, separated
1/8 tsp. salt
½ tsp. vanilla
1 unbaked 8 inch pie shell
1/3 cup sugar

Cream butter until soft and smooth. Add two cups sugar gradually and blend thoroughly. Add egg yolks and beat well. Fold in two egg whites beaten until stiff, with salt and vanilla added.

Turn into pie shell and bake at 425 degrees for 12 minutes. Then decrease heat to 300 degrees and bake about 20 minutes longer.

Beat the three remaining egg whites until stiff, gradually add 1/3 cup sugar and then beat until thick and smooth. Remove pie from oven and pile meringue on top of hot filling, touching edge of pastry all around.

Bake in 350 degree oven from 12 to 15 minutes or until delicately browned. Cool on rack before cutting.

This recipe is very rich so cut into small wedges for serving, It will serve eight to 10 persons.

APPLE PIE

1 cup sugar
2 tbsp. flour
½ nutmeg, grated
½ cup orange juice
3 tbsp. white syrup
1/3 cup melted butter
Winesap apples

Mix the above ingredients together. Slice enough winesap apples into thin slices to fill 9-inch pie pan. Add apples to the above mixture and thoroughly mix together Butter a pie pan heavily before putting in pastry and; line with pastry and then fill with apple mixture.

Top with a lattice pie crust and bake in a preheated 400 degree oven for 15 minutes. Reduce heat to 250 degrees and bake 35 to 40 minutes longer.

Cinnamon rolls are requested

NEW MADRID — The following recipes for Cinnamon Rolls and Butter Icing were contributed to The Daily Standard in 1968 by Mrs. Lucy French, a former resident who now lives in Memphis, Tenn.

I am sure these are the recipes requested by Mrs. James C. Crowson of Sikeston in a letter to the editor published June 19.

Nadine Townsend

CINNAMON ROLLS
24 to 26 rolls
2 pkg. dry yeast
1 cup water
3/4 cup lukewarm milk
1/2 cup sugar
1 tsp. salt
1 egg
1/2 cup shortening
4 to 4 1/2 cups sifted flour

Dissolve yeast in water. Stir in milk, sugar, salt, egg, shortening and two cups flour.

Mix with spoon, or low speed on mixer, until smooth. And two cups flour and mix with hand. Add one fourth cup flour or enough flour to handle dough.

Knead five or 10 minutes or until smooth and shiny. Place in large greased bowl, cover with damp towel, place in warm place until dough is double its size.

Knead down, divide in half and roll out into rectangle 9 by 18 by 1/4 inches on floured board. Brush dough heavily with butter, sprinkle with sugar, cinnamon and raisins, if desired. Roll from side and cut in one-inch pieces.

Place cut side down on greased cookie sheet and let rise. Bake at 350 to 375 degrees for 20 or 25 minutes or until lightly brown.

Ice with:

BUTTER ICING
1 stick soft margarine
1 egg- room temperature
1 lb. confectionary sugar
1 tsp. vanilla or other flavoring
1/8 tsp. salt
3 tsp. milk as needed

Isn't it amazing how —

a fella can spot a bug on a leaf 20 feet away; yet fail to see the dirt on the end of his nose — literally!

the dog will bark and growl at anyone who comes to the door; yet never utters a word when someone sneaks off with Charles' car in the dead of night!

a fella can jump hurdles in track; yet can't keep from falling over his own feet in the house!

a husband can sit up till the wee hours to watch a baseball game; yet mention a game of bridge and he immediately falls asleep in his favorite chair!

a fella can eat junk all day and still be hollow; yet set him down at the dinner table and he is suddenly full as a tick!

a lady can get her hair done and never has anywhere to go; yet let her look a wreck and the invitations are unlimited!

a fella will keep his bicycle neat and clean; yet his room always looks like a disaster area!

a husband can eat home made biscuits nearly every day of the week; yet let him go out to a dinner party and he's telling everyone how he never gets any home baking like they're serving at his house!

a fella's friends are always going to be allowed to do something so he thinks he should be allowed the same privileges, yet talk to their mothers and you hear that they have gotten from theirs, the same sad story that you did!

a mother has any sense left in her head at all!!!

Salads add much to meals

The fresh green color of spring can be echoed on the lunch and dinner table with sprightly leafy salads. A true crisp head or iceberg lettuce is the champion of the salad bowl, a great favorite. Cooks should also consider the ruffly green called escarole, the frilly- leaved, curly endive and the regal, plume- shaped romaine. Each has important vitamins to add to the elements of a meal. Leafy greens also contribute bulk to the diet, an indispensable factor for the body to function well.

Different salads for different meals

ANCHOVY LETTUCE SALAD
2 cans (2 oz. each) anchovy fillets
2 large tomatoes, cut into wedges
1 large cucumber, sliced
1 green pepper, cut into strips
1/4 cup olive or salad oil
2 tbsp. cider vinegar
1 tsp. fresh lemon juice
1/2 tsp. sugar
1/4 tsp. pepper
1 large head lettuce, broken into bite size pieces

Drain oil from anchovy fillets into a large mixing bowl. Separate and chop fillets and add to oil in bowl. Add tomatoes, cucumber and green pepper.

Combine olive or salad oil with vinegar, lemon juice, sugar and pepper; beat until well mixed. Add to bowl and chill at least 1 hour. Just before serving, add lettuce and toss to mix well.

Makes 8 servings.

GARDEN FRESH POTATO SALAD
1 1/2 lb. potatoes
2 tbsp. salad oil
1 tbsp. chopped fresh onion
1 tbsp. fresh lemon juice
1 1/2 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. pepper
1/4 cup chopped green pepper
1 cup chopped celery
1 cup diced cooked ham
8 hard- cooked eggs, diced
1/2 cup mayonnaise
Lettuce

Cook potatoes in boiling water, covered, until tender. Peel and slice. Add salad oil, onion, lemon juice, salt and pepper; mix well and let stand 1 or 2 hours. Add celery, green pepper, ham, eggs and mayonnaise. Mix lightly and spoon into a salad bowl lined with lettuce. Makes 8 servings.

FRESH PINEAPPLE WITH SOUR CREAM SAUCE
1 package (8 oz.) cream cheese, softened
1 cup sour cream
1/3 cup confectioners' sugar
2 tsp. orange liqueur
1 large pineapple

In a small mixing bowl beat cream cheese with sour cream, confectioners' sugar and orange liquer until smooth. Chill 1 hour.

To prepare pineapple, cut off stem and crown ends. Cut off rind all around, from top to bottom; remove eyes with pointed knife. Cut into lengthwise quarters, cut away core and cut into chunks.. Divide among 6 to 8 dessert dishes and top with sour cream sauce.

What's the law?

The case of the sex-conscious soldier

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Billy could hardly be called a male chauvinist. What was good enough for men, he believed, was certainly good enough for women. In particular, serving in the United States Army. Consequently, when he was drafted, he refused to report for induction on the grounds that since women weren't equally draftable, he wasn't reporting anywhere.

Without ado, Billy was hauled into court as a draft dodger. His defense was that the Selective Service Act was unconstitutional.

"Under the law," he argued, "any statute that classified individuals on the basis of sex isn't legal. And, that's exactly what the Selective Service Act does. It discriminates against men in favor of women. While we're trotted out to the frontlines, they're allowed to stay home to do their knitting."

"The security of the nation is more important than Billy's sex problems," responded a U.S. Attorney. " The fact is an army of men is needed to protect the county and its interests and Congress has the Constitutional authority to conscript them for that purpose.It's not a matter of discrimination; it's a matter of national necessity."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you hold the Selective Service Act unconstitutional as discriminatory against men?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held in effect that considering the strong constitutional authority given congress to raise an army and the additional fact that men lose many of their rights anyhow when they are conscripted, the Selective Service Act, concluded the judge, would be so disruptive as to jeopardize national security.

257 price rollbacks obtained by IRS

ST. LOUIS — During Internal Revenue Service administration of petroleum price controls in Missouri, 257 price rollbacks were obtained and $814,979.78 in overcharges were refunded in the form of lower prices to area motorists and other state petroleum users, according to R. C. Voskuil, district director of internal revenue.

In a final report on IRS involvement in the energy program Voskuil also said that from Aug 13, 1973 through June 14, 1974, the IRS received 2,559 price complaints and investigated more than 4,947 gasoline and diesel fuel retailers, home heating oil firms and propane distributors, finding 1,901 violations.

Voskuil emphasized that although the IRS will no longer participate in the energy program, petroleum price controls remain in effect and that duties formerly performed by IRS will be assumed by the Federal Energy Administration on July 1.

Persons with inquiries on the energy program or who wish to report an alleged violation may call the FEA Office at (314) 622-5786 or write P. O. Drawer 1087, Central Station, StLouis, 63188. The number in Kansas City is (816) 374-2191, and the address is 811 Grand, Room 330, Kansas City, Mo. 64106.

Today in U.S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Wednesday, June 26, the 177th day of 1974. There are 188 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1945, delegats of 50 nations, meeting in San Francisco, signed the United Nations Charter.

On this date:

In 1541, the Spanish conqueror, Francisco Pizarro, was killed in Lima, Peru.

In 1549, the 17 provinces of The Netherlands were declared indpendent of the Holy Roman Empire.

In 1844, President John Tyler married Julia Gardiner in a secret wedding in New York.

In 1935, compulsory labor service was introduced in Nazi Germany.

In 1941, Finland announced it was a war with the Soviet Union—for the second time in two years.

In 1944, Allied forces captured Cherbourg, France from the Nazis.

Ten years ago: The Roman Catholic Church and the Spanish government said they had reached basic agreement on proposed legislation to grant legal recognition and certain rights to Spain's protestants.

Five year ago: There were serious outbreaks of racial violence in Omaha, Neb.; Cairo, Ill.; and Kokomo, Ind.

One year ago: The U.S. House of Representatives passed a bill barring the use of funds for American bombing operations in Cambodia and Laos.

Today's birthdays: Opera tenor Richard Crooks is 74. Engineer William Lear is 72.

Thought for today: The United Nations was set up not to get us to heaven, but only to save us from hell—Sir Winston Churchill, 1874-1965

Vaccination comes from "vaca" the Latin word for cow, because the serum first used for smallpox injection came from a cow infested with cowpox.

Grain towers damaged

A freak accident while grain was being unloaded early Friday at Semo Grain Co. at Morley heavily damaged two of the company's grain towers. About 700 bushels of wheat were being unloaded into a truck from a full 18,000 to 19,000 bushel tower when a joint in the structure buckled, causing the tower to lean into a second tower. In addition to the structure of the towers, a walkway and transfer pipe along the tops of the towers were damaged. No grain was lost and no cause for the accident has been discovered. Jim Hastings, a company official, said the towers will have to be taken down and new ones built. Replacement of the two towers may take some time, due to a scarcity of grain storage towers at this time, he added. (Daily Standard photo)

Nixon signs transatlantic unity pact

BRUSSELS (AP) — President Nixon signed a declaration of transatlantic unity today on his way to a Moscow summit meeting and promised he would not sacrifice the interests of the European allies to advance detente.

"In the world in which we live, with the nuclear power that overhangs us, there is no alternative to negotiations," he said later at a luncheon given by Belgium's King Baudouin. "There is no alternative to peace."

But Nixon also reportedly told leaders of 14 alliance states at a closed session that he would maintain U.S. troop strength in Western Europe and would guard against "euphoria" when he meets with Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev for talks beginning Thursday in the Kremlin.

The President also declared that defence and detente are inseparable. White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler reported him as saying: "Western cohesion provides the basis for conducting detente in the common interest."

The new NATO declaration was signed in a 15-minute ceremony preceding the lunch at the royal palace. NATO Secretary General Joseph M.A.H. Luns, the only speaker for the short, public ceremony, declared that with the declaration "all our countries are stronger and more secure."

The NATO declaration was the one agreeed upon and published in Ottawa lst week. It reaffirmed that the alliance is indispensable for the security and defense of America and Western Europe.

France's new president, Valery Giscard d'Estaing, was absent and sent new Premier Jacques Chirac. It was the first appearance of a French premier at NATO headquarters since President Charles de Gaulle expelled the aliance's military headquarters from France.

Ragland disqualifies himself in murder case

NEW MADRID — Circuit Judge William L. Ragland Tuesday disqualified himself and requested the Missouri Supreme Court to desinate a special judge in the first-degree murder case against Lindol Curtis of Portageville, who is charged with the May 7 shooting deaths of his former wife, Mary Louise Curtis, and her mother, Susan Gwaltney.

In another Circuit Court case, Jim Gaddis was sentenced to two concurrent two- year terms in the custody of the State Department of Corrections on burglary and larceny charges. He pleaded guilty to breaking into the Canalou Learning Improvement Center on May 15 and stealing a calculator, two typewriters and a travel clock valued together at $800.

St. Louis - San Francisco Railway was granted a $1,236.75 judgment against William H. Deane Jr., New Madrid County collector of revenue, for taxes paid under protest and which Deane has held in escrow.

Sam L. Hedgepeth was awarded $767.22 judgment for professional fees in a suit against Henry A. Dale.

The marriage of Frances Layton of Canalou and Richard Layton was ordered dissolved; and Carolyn Janet Jamison of Lilbourn Route One was awarded custody of two children when her marriage to Richard Allen Jamison was dissolved.

5 hurt in accidents

Five persons, including two Sikeston men, were injured in four area traffic accidents Tuesday, according to the highway patrol.

Larry Wayne Garrett, 18, of Sikeston received minor injuries at 9:55 a.m. on Route UU one mile south of Charleston when his pickup struck a truck driven by Robert Pennington, 45, of Sikeston. A spokesman for the patrol said Garrett attempted to pass the Pennington truck as it made a left turn.

Garrett was taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston for treatment of a facial injury. Pennington also was treated at the hospital emergency room for minor head and shoulder injuries.

A Malden motorcyclist was injured at 8:30 a.m. at the McGuires- community four miles south of Malden at the junction of Highways 25 and 62.

The accident occurred when an eastbound car driven by Joy Lynn Walz, 21, of Poplar Bluff Route Five pulled into the intersection and struck a southbound motorcycle driven by Samuel Bliss Dortch, 75, of Malden Route Two.

Dortch suffered a broken left leg and was taken to Dunklin County Memorial Hospital in Kennett.

Another car - motorcycle accident at 10:40 a.m. on Highway 51 in Puxico resulted in one minor injury.

The patrol said a northbound car driven by Joseph Robert Brown, 54, of St. Louis turned into the path of a southbound motorcycle driven by Sammy Lee Cates, 38, of Puxico.

Cates was taken to Lucy Lee Hospital in Poplar Bluff.

An accident at 7:50 p.m. three miles south of Holcomb on Highway 25 resulted in one minor injury.

Bicyclist injured in accident

Paul Holifield, the 11-year- old son of Shirley Holifield, 415 Fletcher St., was struck and injured by a pickup truck at 1:45 p.m. Tuesday at the corner of School and Kendall streets.

Police said the boy was struck when he rode his bicycle from Kendall Street onto School Street into the path of a southbound truck driven by Johnny Litchford, 605 S. Frisco St.

Police said Litchford stopped and told the boy to wait until he could get help, but the boy jumped on his bicycle and rode home.

Litchford then drove to the police station to report the accident.

A short time later, Mrs. Holifield called police and said she was taking her son to Missouri Delta Community Hospital, where he was treated for multiple scratches and released.

Ross sentenced to 55 years

CHARLESTON — Calvin Ross, 23, of St. Louis, a former resident of New Madrid, was sentenced Tuesday by Circuit Judge Marshall Craig to a total of 55 years in custody of the State Department of Corrections after a motion for a new trial was overruled.

Ross was sentenced to 25 years on a felonious assault charge, stemming from a Dec. 4, 1973 assault with a gun on Willie Hardin, 68, of rural New Madrid and 30 years on an armed robbery charge in connection with the robbery of the D. C. Barry Grocery and Service Station, where Hardin was employed near Kewanee. The sentences are to run consecutively.

A Circuit Court jury found Ross guilty on the charges June 5 but was unable to agree on the punishment in the change of venue case from New Madrid County. Ross was given credit for 202 days already spent in jail since his arrest.

Robert Ross, 23, of San Diego, Calif., and Charles Williams, 31, of New Madrid also have been found guilty on the same charges. Robert Ross also received a 55- year prison sentence May 23, and Williams was sentenced to 14 years on May 29.

In other court action, a decree of dissolution of marriage was granted to Polly Nora Adams and John A. Adams; and a contract suit brought by Cook Industries Inc. against George Hurtchison Jr. was dismissed with prejudice.

Two damage suits were filed this week in Circuit Court against Dr. T. P. Fenton, a Charleston osteopath.

The first suit, seeking $60,000 in compensatory damages and $100,000 punitive damages, was filed by Vashiffiva Williams of Charleston. Miss Williams charges in the suit that her three- month- old son, Rommey Delmar Williams, died Jan. 3, 1974, after he was taken to the office of Dr. Fenton for treatment on Jan. 2.

The suit further charges that Dr. Fenton failed to prescribe medicine to control, improve and assist in healing and making the child well in the early stages of bronchopneumonia and or congestive condition of the child. It also charges him with failing to stop vomiting and severe dehydration or to hospitalize the child.

Mrs. Jennevis L. Miller is seeking $75,000 compensatory damages and $100,000 punitive damages in her suit against Dr. Fenton in conncection with the July 6, 1973, death of her husband, Jack Miller.

In the suit, Dr. Fenton is accused of being careless and negligent in the treatment of Miller, who was injured on July 5, 1973, when a vehicle on which he was working fell on him.

The suit further charges that Dr. Fenton failed to examine Miller when he was brought to the doctor's office for serious abdominal, pelvic and bodily inuuries which required

Sikeston joins rate protest

Sikeston and three other cities will take their protest against a proposed rate hike by Associated Natural Gas Co. to the Public Service Commission in Jefferson City on Thursday.

Sikeston is being joined in the protest by Kennett, Chaffee and East Prairie.

The public service commission can grant temporary and permanent rate increases. The temporary increase is granted until a complete investigation of the rate increase is made. If the public service commission decides an increase is needed, it can make the increase permanent.

It is the temporary increase the city's are intervening against.

Associated is seeking an average increase of 17 per cent in its monthly rates.

William Ford, a consulting engineer, will be the expert witness against the rate hike. Also representing Sikeston will be Manuel Drumm, city attorney, and Mayor Frank Ferrell.

A 'COMICAL' PREDICTION

Some will say it's part of the current "nostalgia" kick. Others will attribute it to the search for "relevance." Still others may suggest it's the result of the discovery in the 1950s that "Johnny can't read."

Whatever the reasons, the fact is that comic books are the craze on college campuses these days.

According to College and University Business Reports, "Comics are so popular that more than 50,000 students now pay a dollar each to belong to a comic book society with chapters on more than 100 campuses."

A number of colleges and universities offer noncredit courses using comic books, including Brown, Tufts, Indiana, Texas Techn, Bowling Green, Auburn, Hunter, Brigham Young and Wisconsin.

The comic book industry, which was born about 40 years ago, hit its peak during World War II when sales were estimated at 600 million a year. Primarily due to television, circulation decline in the 1950s to an annual rate of less than 200 million. Growth resumed in the 1960s, and currently more than 300 million comic books are sold annually.

Some 25 per cent of young adults now read comic books or magazines, particularly at the college level. A trend toward topicality has captured the affections of a sophisticated new generation of readers, says publisher Stan Lee, who puts out a number of comic books, including one called "Crazy," a satirical magazine ribbing the establishment.

Lee insists that besides being entertaining, comic books are educational. Studies have shown their value in teaching youngsters how to read and develop their skills at comprehension. Comic books utilize a vocabulary of 20,000 words, he says. The college graduate level is 30,000 words.

"Within the next decade," he predicts, "it is my belief that comic books will come into their own as an educational medium and be universally recognized as perfectly viable forms of communication, education and art."

A total of $70,000 in labor money was pumped into the three races. John Murtha, winner in Pennsylvania, received $24,680, Richard VanderVeen of Michigan, $18,486, and Thomas Luken of Ohio took in $28,700. Among the unions contributing to the Democratic candidates were the Steelworkers, the Machinists, the Firemen, the Hotel and Restaurant Employes, the Garment Workers, the Railway Clerks, the Rubber Workers, the Meat Cutters, the Government Employes, the Plasterers, the Retail Clerks, the Plumbers, the Carpenters and the Pipefitters.

"Have you ever wondered," asks "Forward Chattanooga," a publication of the Greater Chattanooga Area Chamber of Commerce, "how to get your finger into the Federal pie and get in on all the money the Federal Government gives away to people? Well, the Federal Government has now put it all in one place in a book called the Catalog of Federal Domestic Assistance. A brief check of this book indicated among the programs listed were 402 dealing with education, 205 dealing with housing and community development, 82 dealing with the environment and the list goes on and on. We must apologize to our readers since it took us about a year to wade through his cornucopia of Federal largess and to our surprise, before we had finished with our research, the Office of Management and Budget had already issued a new Catalof of Fedeal Domestic Assistance. To our dismay the only thing we are prepared to tell our readers about the new catalog is that the Federal Government is keeping its price in line with inflation and has increased the cost of the updated version from $7 to $7.50, or by 7.1 per cent."

More and more people are on the highways with trailers behind the family car. With this in mind, Colonel Sam S. Smith, the Superintendent of the Missouri State Highway Patrol, today called attention to certain skills motorists should practice when pulling their trailers.

1. Start slowly and allow more time for other traffic to clear before moving onto a highway. Glance frequently into the mirror to check on traffic. 2. Position your car and trailer farther from the curb than usual before making a right turn. Keep well toward the center of your lane when rounding curves. 3. Towing a trailer will reduce your acceleration capability in overtaking and passing another vehicle. Allow more time and distance to pass and allow more room before you move back into your lane. 4. Maintain a greater following distance when pulling a boat and trailer than with your car alone. 5. Your speed may be slower than that of others on the highway. Special attention, therefore, should be given to drivers desiring to pass. When a large vehicle passes you, a large air mass movement will tend to move your trailer to the right. A slight steering adjustment at this time will help the situation. 6. Make sure the trailer is securely hitched and that it has good, properly inflated tires.

"Driving with a trailer is vastly different from operating a car alone," Colonel Smith stated. "Special skills are required of drivers to safely pull their rigs in traffic. I urge motorists to acquire these skills and to be extra careful when pulling trailers."

BEHIND THE PEACE

Getting the cease-fire agreement between Israel and Syria was a great accomplishment for Henry Kissinger. But we are just mean enough to wonder how much the promise of $100 million to Syria had to do with the peace, and how much the $200 million to clean out and open up the Suez Canal had in gaining the Egyptian signature to the peace treaty. How busy our mint's printing presses are going to be the rest of this year and how long can we wait without increasing the debt limit again.

HOUSE VOTES NEW LIFE INTO ANTI-POVERTY WASTE

If one has ever been puzzled as to why Congress is held in such disrepute by the American people, he should look no further than the action taken recently by the House of Representatives. With the Administration threatening a veto and in face of a dire warning by Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur Burns that Congress must curb its dangerously inflationary spending, the House, by a vote of 331 to 53, voted $3.76 billion to breathe new life into the discredited and corrupt anti-poverty programs.

At a time when the polls have revealed that a new conservative majority of the American people has emerged, fed up with the Washington scene, disgusted with the Washington scene, disgusted with government corruption and waste, and bled white by the high taxes and inflation which have been the price of hundreds of government programs spawned in the past decade, short-sighted, ill-informed and indifferent congressmen of both parties rolled over and played dead for a highly organized lobby or subsidized poverty professionals and their allies.

Technically, the House voted to disband the agency called the Office of Economic Opportunity but the members kept alive its key elements, including $1 billion worth of the controversial community action programs, by transferring OEO's functions to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Fearful that HEW boss Caspar Weinberger might curb some of the questionable community action programs which are most controversial, the House required that community action have its own director to be confirmed by the liberal Senate and provided for transfer of present OEO employers and their radical union. The House, in short, wanted to shield the community action programs from any potential reform efforts that Weinberger has not even said he would try to undertake.

Although it would take at least as many pages as the 179 in the bill to outline fully its weaknesses and dangers, here are just a few of the things the measure would empower federal bureaucrats to do:

--Finance liberal activists organizations engaged in lobbying, demonstrations, boycotts and picketing and allow these organizations to use federal facilities and taxpayer-subsidized equipment. The type of organization that will become eligible for financial aid includes the American Indian Movement, the Marxist-influenced La Raza Unida party, and the leaders in the national movement for pre-trial release of accused felons.

--Fund at will thousands of private, non-profit activist groups which, in turn, may provide federal money and resources to additional thousands of non-profit activists groups.

--Provide $50,000, 15- year loans to any person who wishes to establish a business owned by "low- income individuals."

-- Establish "neighborhood centers" in every neighborhood in America to promote legal services, consumer protection, child development, housing, recreation and educational programs.

--Furnish "professional architectural and related services ... to persons and community organizations or groups not otherwise able to afford such assistance."

--Underwrite "Minority Business Assistance" to "individuals, partnerships or other entities" which benefit enterprises "controlled by one or more socially or economically disadvantages persons."

--Turn over 15- year loans to any low- income rural families "not qualified to obtain such funds by loan under other Federal programs."

--Continue to install representatives of welfare rights groups, labor unions, left- wing activists, and other organized "spokespersons" for the poor on the governing boards of community action agencies.

So here's the way that Congress is spending your taxes -- for the Great Society's most unpopular program.

CALM APPROACH

The petition drive to put election reform on the ballot this year in Missouri has an appealing sound.

Watergate has focused most forcibly the public's attention on need for reform.

We have not had the opportunity to read the proposal. And we're not alone in that. Quote after quote from persons who say they favor the proposal also sees them adding that they've not read it, or haven't read all of it.

And that's the danger.

Proposals which affect each of us should be advanced and studied in a calmer atmosphere.

What sounds real good may under calm consideration and study prove otherwise.

We note that Secretary of State James Kirkpatrick, Missouri's chief election official, raises questions about the initiative proposal. Kirkpatrick cannot be faulted as an advocate of election reform, having been in the forefront of the effort from a time when it was not popular.

We absolutely favor reform in the election process.

We favor such legislation being done by the Missouri General Assembly.

We favor a strong, unwavering spotlight be kept on those elected officials as they work up election reform.

We favor no excuses for a strong bill not being written.

But we want to see a bill which won't create more problems that it solves.

We want a bill which will neither eliminate the smaller contributor, nor encourage the trend by which only the wealthy may run for public office.

We believed elected legislators, calling for expert opinion from both active politicians and learned theoreticians, is best equipped to do this most needed job.

NO SYMPATHY FOR SYMBIONESE

Unlike a lot of other people, we had no sympathy for the Symbionese scoundrels who died in a gunfight and the ensuing fire in Los Angeles last week. Of course we sympathize with their parents. But these outlaws would have stopped at nothing, murder included, to terrorize the nation. The same people who disparage the police and FBI shooting back at desperate criminals, would likely favor a law which forbad police carrying revolvers, preferring to see the officers killed than to have them shoot down criminals. Until the present day pacifists came along, there was comparatively little crime and the United States had never lost a war. Then came Korea followed by Vietnam, where the military had an order, "Do not shoot until you are shot at." Lieutenant Calley is a good example. He was ordered to go in and clean up a town that had been friendly to the Communists. Doubtless he did, but he shot up the place and killed a lot of people. Of course he was aided by those under his command. Now he has a dishonorable discharge and will have to serve a jail sentence, likely depriving him of many privileges. Yet Lieutenant Calley was trying to help his country by killing off its enemies and those who befriended the enemy. Likely few are in agreement with our stand on a lot of things, but we are going to tell you how we feel.

QUESTION OF CLEARCUTTING

It is all very well for theoreticians, ecologists and envrionmentalists to sit in comfortable meeting halls and debate the pros and cons of forest land management . It is something else to deal with the practical side of such management as timber companies and foresters must do everyday. A crucial question relating to forest management has been clearcutting--a method of timber harvesting in which, under appropriate conditions, all merchantable trees are removed from a given area.

An example of why clearcutting can be necessary was cited by the director of forestry research for a large timber company. He pointed out that a single old- growth tree four feet in diameter and 200 feet tall will weight about 15 tons. "The cutting, moving and loading of such a tree," he said, "is a considerable engineering feat requiring large, heavy, powerful equipment." He added that because of the cost in getting the equipment to the area to be logged off "and the physical impossiblity of removing part of these forest giants without destroying or seriously injuring the remaining trees" clearcutting is imperative. Also, the species of tree influences harvesting practices. For example, Douglas fir trees demand great amounts of sunlight when young. Clearcutting of mature trees is a substitute for the old forest fires, windstorms and disease that used to wipe out old-growth stands.

As the forestry expert made obvious, clearcutting is one of the indispensable tools of modern forest management. It is a tool best understood by those who work in the forests.

CONGRESS SHOULD ESTABLISH BUDGET COMMITTEE

A major cause of inflation is out-of-sight government spending. And Congress can do something axout it!

We all know our taxes are high. But we have almost no way to know how our money is being spent. Unfortunately, neither does the Congress. There is no procedure by which any congressman can evaluate his votes to spend money in relationship to the total federal spending budget for the year. Only after all the spending bills have been voted can anyone add up the totals.

The Administration recently submitted a $304.4 billion budget for action by Congress. This is more than 50 per cent higher than 1970 budget outlays, a really frightening increase.

A Joint Congressional Committee on Budget Control has come up with a plan for Congress to vote on a spending ceiling each year and to have a procedure to provide an overview of the budget as it makes its slow way through Congress . The House has approved this bill and it is being considered by the Senate.

Nothing should stand in the way of this essential budget reform proposal. Congressmen and Senators must have a mechanism to control federal spending if they wish to do so. Then it will be up to all of us to vote in November for candidates who pledge themselves to halt the growth of government expenditures.

A man in a small town drove out into the country one day and left an order with a farmer for a dozen chickens, to be lelivered in town, at the man's house.

Next day, the farmer made the delivery, but found no one at home. Being in a hurry, he left the chickens in the front yard, in an open crate. Naturally, they scattered all over the neighborhood, and the buyer had a hard time rounding them up.

Next day he called the farmer. "That was no way to deliver those chickens I ordered!" he said. "They got away, and I had to chase them all over town. All I could find was eleven."

"Is that so?" said the farmer. "Well, I think you did pretty well, considering that I only left six."

YOUNG PEOPLE HAVE MOST AT STAKE

The most important resource this country has is its work force.

It is the working American who is the backbone of our economic system, who produces the goods and services, pays the taxes, and, indirectly, creates business growth.

Better jobs for more Americans will come, of course, from business profits and the expectation of profits which are essential for companies to expand.

The term "profit," unfortunately, has taken on a negative, expolitive connotation in some segments of American society today. Vice President Gerald R. Ford told a group of business leaders recently that they have not succeeded in their efforts to educate the American public about the importance of profits.

Young people are entering the job market each year. Increasing numbers of positions msut be created. Without steady growth, the economy will soon stagnate.

Under our system high profits attract competitors who, in turn, will provide more jobs and seek to produce better products at lower prices. It is a never- ending circle which, if broken at any point, will have disastrous consequences for those at all other points along the flow.

Washington-Merry-Go-Round

by Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: Nixon Leaks, Too

WASHINGTON — The White House howls about news leaks have moved us to relate for the first time how those same horrified gentlemen have tried to use our column to leak unfavorable stories against their political foes.

First, the White House tried to establish a direct pipeline into our office. This was shut down after our exposes of the Nixon Administration landed us on the White House "enemies list."

Thereafter, the President's men used indirect approaches to plant stories with us, once routing information through the Virgin Islands.

Here are the details:

Early in 1969, President Nixon's political tutor, the late Murray Chotiner, called on us to say that the new President wanted friendly relations and that the resources of the White House would be available to us for hard- to- get information.

We don't know whether Nixon himself was a party to this arrangement. But ex-White House aide Clark Mollenhoff has told us that he learned from the President's former staff chief, H. R. Haldeman, of Chotiner's secret relationship with our office.

Through the Chotiner channel, we received only half-a- dozen stories, including the Justice Department's file on the tax investigation of George Wallace and his brother, Gerald. This was at a time when the White House feared the Alabama governor would run for President as an independent in 1972 and drain votes away from Nixon.

We always double- checked the White House leads and seldom gave the facts the emphasis Chotiner wanted. When we also started publishing Nixon scandals, the olive branch was withdrawn and the Chotiner leak dried up. But we learned that the White House still kept trying to plant stories with us indirectly. We have obtained the confidential White House file, for example, on Sen. George McGovern's campaign treasurer, Henry Kimelman. The file shows how the White House tried to slip us derogatory information about Kimelman.

On May 12, 1972, presidential aide W. Richard Howard wrote to a White House colleague, Fred Fielding, alleging that Kimelman "was nearly indicted last year because he is a liquor importer in the Virgin Islands and apparently he really rakes off the profits."

The allegation, it turned out later, was erroneous. But the memo continued: "We believe there must be material at Justice and Interior on this sleezy character that we would like to obtain through your fantastic sources.

"We could, of course, control the release of this material but need your help in getting what apparently is some pretty good stuff." The memo was stamped "Confidential- Eyes Only."

Not long afterward, the White House received a memo from Interior Secretary Rogers Morton's executive assistant, Bob Hitt. This one was stamped "Very Confidential-Eyes Only."

Hitt provided a rundown on Kimelman, telling about an investigation into alleged irregularities but concluding: "The investigation turned up nothing sinister that I am aware of."

By an interesting coincidence, we received a communication about this time from William N. Greer of the Virgin Islands. He enclosed a two- page summary of allegations against Kimelman, which we investigated but couldn't substantiate.

We were startled to find this letter in the White House's confidential Kimelman file. It was accompanied by a letter from Greer's wife to White House aide Harry Dent. "Enclosed herewith," wrote Nellie Greer, "is a copy of information sent by my husband to Jack Anderson.

We have learned that Greer, a former U. S. marshal, is a security specialist who does undercover work for commercial firms in the Virgin Islands. His wife in 1972 was a minor Republican appointee working in the Government House.

Reached in the Virgin Islands, Greer denied that the White House had instigated his letter to us. He had obtained the detailed accusations against Kimelman, said Greer, from local law enforcement agencies.

The Kimelman file shows that several Watergate figures -- ex- Attorney General John Mitchell, ex- White House counsel John Dean, ex-presidential aide Charles Colson and a few others -- tried to dig up dirt on Kimelman.

The results can be summed up in a June 5, 1972, memo from Dean to Howard. "To date," wrote Dean, "we have been unable to come up with any material on Kimelman that might be used to illustrate the true nature of the money man in McGovern's life."

ZIEGLER'S FISH: A year ago, we revealed that the National Aquarium was forced to spend 10 per cent of its meager budget to maintain fish tanks fors enators, representatives and other pampered poohbahs. Our story shortly put an end to the government's door- to- door guppy service.

There is, however, one lone fish fancier holding out. The President's press secretary, Ron Ziegler, has stubbornly refused to give up his Bleeding Heart Tetras.

Rumor has it that Ziegler gains great inspiration from his fish. He is about as communicative as his finny friends.

Footnote: The federal fish-tank tender, who must still service Ziegler's aquarium, isn't permitted to enter the office while the great man is present. Not until Ziegler slips out does his secretary notify the aquarist he may enter.

SOCIAL SECURITY NO LONGER PAYS

During the early years of Social Security, started during the 10 years of the Great Depression, the first recipients stood a chance of getting more than they had paid into the plan. Even then, much of the money for older citizens came not from federal Social Security but from old- age pension plans conceived and paid for by individual states. Later, the federal taxpayer was saddled with more of each state's burden, the implication being that "Washington money" was "free."

Now it is clear that Social Security does not pay. Most of the millions of wage earners forced to participate in the program could get private insurance programs paying twice as much for the same expense. As this becomes clear to more people, the younger wage earners, who are being most cheated as the Social Security tax bites harder, likely will demand a better shake.

Studies indicate that any wage earner under 40 is almost certain to wind up at retirement age having paid in more hard- earneddollars than he can collect, allowing for the ravages of continued governmental inflation. If younger workers demand lower Social Security payments or higher benefits, the system will be bankrupted.

Constructives have long pointed out that the system actually has been the same as bankrupt for years. The taxpayer has been misled into thinking that there is a "fund" set aside to insure that he will receive his Social Security. Infact, most of the funds for payment come out of the general treasury and current payments, the "fund" having been borrowed up already to pay federal commitments other than Social Security. HLH

Test will reveal which profession 'most brazen'

Dear Ann Landers: You printed a column recently from a lady lawyer who compared the morals of lawyers with those of physicians. It was not a theoretical argument. No doctor had ever made a pass at her, she said, but the lawyer who handled her divorce case propositioned her and she agreed -- right in his office on his leather couch.

You were skeptical, but that lady was right. At least 50 per cent of the divorced women of my acquaintance (including my wife) have had pitches from their lawyers -- ranging from verbal offers to near rape.

You said poor judgment, weak character, etc. don't belong exclusively to any one profession. I agree. But how about a test? Why don't you ask your readers to drop a postcard with one word on it. The question: "From which profession did you receive the most brazen pitch?" But let's not limit it to doctors and lawyers. The third category should be clergymen. I'll bet lawyers will come in first, clergymen second, and doctors a poor third . -- Cynical For A Reason

Dear Cnnic: You have a weird circle of acquaintances, but I accept your challenge.

Please, women -- no letters with details. Just a one- word postcard naming the profession. I'll report the results after we do a ten- day count.

Dear Ann Landers: I'd like to respond to the widows and divorcees who say they can't find a decent man. I'm sure the complaining females have met several very nice men, but no man stayed around long for the following reasons. As a man who has been divorced for six years and taken out dozens of women, I speak from experience. Here is what I've been running into:

Every divorced girl tells me what a rat her ex-husband was. How he drank, gambled, ignored her, slept around and lied like a Persian rug. Not one of the divorced women I took out ever mentioned the possiblility that perhaps there was something wrong with HER.

The widow is worse. She wants to have you over to dinner right away. Then out come the family album with the endless monologue on how wonderful her "Albert" was. What a beautiful person, without a single human flaw. A saint. So generous, so considerate. And of course there are photographs of him all over the place.

Who cares? The answer is NOBODY, and the sooner these divorcees and widows get this through their heads, the better their chances will be for a second marriage.-- Also Single and Looking

Dear Single: You've had a run of bum luck, mister. There are plenty of divorcees and widows around who don't fit your description. I hope you find one soon.

Dear Ann Landers: I did a dumb thing and I could kick myself. For my 15th birthday, my grandmother gave me ten dollars so I could go to a doctor and have my ears pierced. Well, last year, my girl friend pierced her own ears with ice cubes and a needle and she offered to do mine for nothing. I let, her and she put the holes too far down.

If I don't wear earrings, will the holes close up? Can I then have my ears pierced by a real doctor? Or will those first holes always be there?-- Dumb Doris

Dear Doris: A doctor can make the new holes immediately. The old ones will close in time.

Washington report

Better policies needed to deal with shortages

WASHINGTON, D. C. — The growing probability and now the reality of shortages in the mid seventies, resulting in high prices for food, fuel, fiber and metals, has been a concern to me since long before the troubles of the past months faced the consuming public.

As long ago as 1950, at my suggestion when I was chairman of the National Securities Resources Board, President Truman appointed the Materials Policy Commission to study our national sources of minerals, metals and other essential commodities.

In its final report in 1952, the commission, chaired by William Paley, recommended that the government establish a top level federal agency to keep track of our raw materials and coordinate national policy to maintain adequate supplies.

Unfortunately, attempts to establish such an agency were never adequately supported and information needed for more realistic natural resource development and trade policies has become scattered throughout the federal bureaucracy into more than 50 different agencies.

Now, after almost 25 years of haphazard federal policy toward developing information and plans to anticipate and deal with fluctuating prices and shortages, the Senate has taken a positive step that could result in more constructive planning and action. It has approved and sent to the House of Representatives a bill, S. 3523, to establish a national commission to raise warning flags whenever shortages appear likely to develop and to recommend steps to deal with such problems before they cause great hardship.

The lack of coordination on information and planning for adequate supplies of vital resources and commodities affects everyone in Missouri and across the nation, whether he lives in an urban or rural area.

As example, the proposed commission on supplies and shortages could recommend steps to help avoid the uneven application of agricultural export and import restrictions. This has disrupted longstanding trade patterns the United States needs to earn the money to pay for our imports.

Blessed as we are with the world's most productive farm lands, the United States is a major supplier of agricultural commodities to the world market. We supply 90 percent of the soybeans and a large percentage of the wheat and feed grains traded among nations. Wiser production and trade policies could turn this productive genius into greater advantage for the farmer AND the consumer.

Unless we develop better policies to deal with present and expected shortages, many of the items we take for granted will be available only at very high prices or not at all. For example, Jamaica, a major supplier of bauxite for our aluminum industry, recently began negotiations to increase taxes and royalties on bauxite mined by U.S. companies. Copper, coffee and bananas are other examples of foreign products we need and which might fall under the same category soon.

Hopefully, S.3523 will be a first step toward achievement of a more realistic and constructive national policy on production, development and wise utilization of food, fuel, fiber, minerals and metals.

Ambulance trustees sworn in

DEXTER — The six trustees elected to the board of the Stoddard County Ambulance District Monday night were officially sworn into office and began organizing the district.

Although basic organization was accomplished, the big question which was left hanging in the air after a lengthy session adjourned was how much will it cost to run the ambulance district and what rate will the tax levy need to be set? The board is empowered to set a levy up to 15 cents per $100 valuation.

County Clerk John Marvin Capps gave the oath of office to the six members of the board: Jack Smarr of Dexter, Bill Poeppelmeyer of Bloomfield, Ray Coats of Bernie, Wesley Cowan of Essex, David Cummins of Advance and John Roach of Puxico.

The Stoddard County Court (Judges Ermer Garner, Joseph Ward and Harold "Pete" Snider) was present to observe the ceremony and comment on the district. Discussion of costs was present from the beginning of the meeting.

Judge Snider mentioned that the court "went out on a limb" with people in the county when the district was proposed saying that it could be operated "cheaper than 15 cents." He said the court's inquiries indicated it could be operated cheaper. "The figures we were told were seven, eight or 10 cents," he commented.

Judge Ward felt that the law making ambulance operation more regulated, hence increasing the costs and causing private operators to cease service, was "about the worst thing to happen in the history of this county." It placed the county in the position of assuming financial responsibility for operating ambulance service instead of leaving it in private hands.

Before the ambulance board of trustees began their own session, Capps told them, "You're not going to start in debt. The court is picking up half the tab this year."

The district will receive four new ambulances paid for by the federal government. They will be equipped with government financed radio equipment. "There were only 50 ambulances allotted to the state this year and we got four of them," Judge Snider said.

Capps added that the ambulances should be delivered the first of August. "We had hoped to have one or two by tonight," he said.

"Dexter Memorial Hospital is operating an ambulance answering service," Capps said. "it was the only way we could get the ambulances promised to us (by the federal government). It doesn't mean a patient must be taken to Dexter hospital."

Prior to leaving, Capps also warned the trustees that in order to receive money from this year's tax revenue they must file the levy by Aug. 10.

When the board held its own meeting after the others left, Smarr was elected chairman, Cummins was elected treasurer and Coats was elected secretary.

The second Tuesday in June was selected as the date to hold an annual meeting during which to install new board members, elect officers and set the tax levy for the coming year.

Two board members will be elected each year. The terms of the board members are staggered. Cowan and Roach are beginning one- year terms. Cummins and Smarr are beginning two- year terms, while Peoppelmeyer and Coats are beginning three- year terms.

The board hopes to hold elections the first Tuesday in April in conjunction with school and city elections. Holding an election in conjunction with other political bodies will help defray election costs.

The board decided to meet the second and fourth Monday of each month at 7:30 p.m., for the present, in the Stoddard County Circuit Courtroom. Special meetings may be called at the discretion of the chairman, one is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. July 2.

The ambulance district's fiscal year was set from Jan. 1 to Dec. 31. If the levy is properly filed this year, the district should start generating tax revenue in November, according to Capps.

Until the district begins to generate revenue, Smarr commented that the county will have to pay bills or else the district will have to borrow money against future revenues. However, the judges had departed the meeting pledging to help in any way they could.

In addition to the basic organization and tax levy, the board gave some discussion to collections and what fees to charge users of the ambulance service.

The board seemed to feel some minimum fee should be established. "In outlying areas, there is going to have to be a minimum fee plus," Cummins said. Smarr felt that without a minimum fee, many persons would take advantage of the ambulance service for non-emergency use.

"We'll be involved in overhead," Cummins said. "We'll have to defray some overhead through the fees."

Smarr asked the board members to give a great deal of thought to the fee schedule. "it is going to be a tough nut to crack," he said.

The board seemed to feel a lot of volunteer help will be needed to run four ambulances, that the district could not afford to hire all the necessary employes.

Poeppelmeyer commented that Mississippi County officials had estimated that it costs $60,000 to $65,000 per ambulance to operate a service on a full- time basis.

With costs uppermost in their minds (what fees to charge, what levy to set, how to financially set up the district), the board adjourned until the July 2 special meeting, at which time the trustees hope to set a levy.

State police say woman must stop transporting elderly

BRAGG CITY — For 10 years, Mrs. Barbara Cecil Graham has helped the elderly of Bragg City get to wherever they needed to go, usually getting little or nothing in return.

"It needed doing," said Mrs. Graham, who estimates she's made 500 or more trips to Kennett, eight miles away, carrying people to the doctor, dentist, hospital or simply shopping.

Now, after a "disagreement" with the Missouri State Highway Patrol, she has discontinued doing so.

"I hated to, really. For a lot of the old folks here, there's no way for them to get to town, and that hurts me. Oh, if an emergency comes up, I'll still help, but it won't be like before," she said.

The rub with the highway patrol came three weeks ago when she was told to either obtain a chauffeur's license or stop transporting people.

"The officer was really nice to me, but he didn't understand. What happened, I think, is a man I wouldn't take to the whisky store called the police and said I was running a business. Well, I'll have you know I never have asked anyone for a nickel. Some contribute, but then it takes a little something to pay for the gas between here and Kennett," she said.

"As far as I'm concerned, she was doing a good service," saidBragg City Mayor Warren Napier, a grocer.

"Some of the older people here aren't even able to walk to the store, and I know they don't have a way to get to the hospital ... we don't have a taxi here," he said.

Mrs. Graham, 68, became involved with the senior citizens shortly after her husband died. He had been the town constable for 25 years.

"Cecil would come and get you no matter if it was 3 o'clock in the morning. I've known it to happen," said one elderly man living just outside town.

"I don't reckon anybody gave her much more than a thank you most of the time."

"You see, most of the people who are older around here only have their government checks, and the way the prices are, they don't go very far. Some of them have to go once every four weeks just for a checkup," Mrs. Graham said.

A chauffeur's license in Missouri costs about $10. "I guess I could afford that, but I get kind of nervous about all those tests you have to take," she said.

"But, really, it's the very idea of them telling me something like that. Why I never thought I was doing anything wrong. I was just trying to do a little something to help people.

"It's the principle of the thing."

Churchill's Severest Critic Heard From

GENERALISSIMO CHURCHILL. By R. W. Thompson. Scribner's. 252 Pages. $8.95.

R. W. Thompson, a British military historian, in a relatively short book has written what few readers will deny is the severest criticism to date of Sir Winston Churchill's performance as his country's civilian military chief during the greatest threat it has experienced in more than a century — perhaps ever.

Thompson, a member of the Institute for Strategic Studies, maintains that by his very nature Churchill as both prime minister and defense minister insisted so stubbornly on exercising authority down to the level of battlefield tactics that he endangered Britain's success at times in its fight with Hitler.

He even argues that Churchill actually damaged the reputations of such military stalwarts as Field Marshal Earl Wavell and Field Marshal Sir Claude Auchinleck for the prime minister's own aggrandizement in power and political salvation. Thompson sees Auchinleck as the real victor over German Field Marshal Erwin Rommel in North Africa in the first Battle of El Alamein, only to be shunted off to make room for Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery in the assured victory of second Alamein.

Thompson acknowledges the value of Churchill as the trumpet of democracy in the bleak days of Hitler's early victories. He has shrewd comments on Churchill, "the great diversionist," the 'round-end player with a critical disadvantage in men and materiel whose gambles extended from the abortive Gallipoli campaign of World War I to the costly Anzio venture he favored in World War II.

H(elp). Van Whittle,
New Madrid County Collector on Aug. 6

"Yes, I am campaigning for you," said Mrs. Wilma Coffee, a Lilbourn businesswoman, as New Madrid Collector Candidate H. Van Whittle, left, takes his race to the people -- as opposed to a political machine.

"I want to thank all those people who have chosen to support me for this most important office.

"I am not a machine candidate. With voter registration, I think New Madrid Countians are waking up that the tide is beginning to roll and we can control our government if we get out and vote on election day.

"When first beginning my campaign, I went over this county and the song was --- 'You can't win.'

"I assure you, however, that song is not being heard now since the people are realizing they can vote and win with a candidate that is not allied with the machine, which is based on the belief that a man is so weak and inadequate that he is unable to govern himself, and therefore requires the rule of strong masters.

"Please realize that this is an opportunity for you to vote for someone other than political hacks, who have worked for years in the courthouse and jumped 50 feet high when told by political bosses."

Police procedure explained

Lt. Thurman Burns, training officer for Sikeston police department, told Kiwanians about police training procedures during Tuesday mornings club meeting at Ramada Inn.

Burns said the day will come when a man or woman who wants to become a police officer must have a certain number of hours of schooling.

Highway patrolmen now go through 22 weeks of strenuous training and know the law from A to Z concerning the state of Missouri.

Burns said the Sikeston force consists of 32 men, with 22 of them on road work.

Training is a continuous and never ending procedure to police officers, he added. The highway patrol furnished each member of the force a school schedule at the first of the year, and the policemen try to attend at least some of the sessions.

One officer has just completed a breathalyzer course and two other officers will attend narcotics training in November, he continued.

When someone new joins the force, he is put with a trainer — an officer who has attended some of the highway patrol courses — and then the new man is put on the road with an experienced roadman.

Bob Meyers presided at the meeting, and Lt. Burns was introduced by Gary Chullino.

Cape Girardeau Kiwanians Garland Fronabarger, Virgil Welch, Dave Graves, Carney Fesler, Joe Black and Cecil Blaylock were guests of the club.

VFW officers installed

PORTAGEVILLE — An installation ceremony for the new officers of Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 4924 was held Tuesday night at the community building.

Officers installed were Junior Russell, commander; Jay Wilson, senior vice commander; Carl Phillips, junior vice commander; Bill Houser, quartermaster; Bill Hobbs, adjutant; Glen Lennon, chaplain; and Joe Fleming, service officer.

The officers were installed by the immediate past commander, Paul "Pete" Welch.

The post has been meeting in the community building since it was chartered two years ago, and the members voted unanimously to proceed with the purchase of a building site for a new post home. Named to a committee for the selection of a site were Houser, Wilson, Hobbs and Russell.

The post agreed to have a ring toss concession for soft drinks at the annual Jaycee barbecue July 4 as a fund-raising project.

Following the meeting, a barbecue chicken dinner prepared by Welch and Russell was served.

Senator says state tax increase can be delayed

JEFFERSON CITY — Sen. Norman L. Merrell, D-Monticello, thinks a state tax increase can be staved off for two more years at least.

Merrell, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, has made it clear, however, that success in preventing a tax increase will call for very careful spending.

If, as now seems possible, the state's general revenue reserve at the end of the fiscal year this month is somewhere in the neighborhood of $80 million, the goal of no new taxes could be achieved.

But pressures for new and expanded programs are always strong and it is already clear that they will be renewed next year.

Merrell made his statement at a University of Missouri School of Journalism public affairs round table in Columbia last week. Another participant in the program was Rep. Wayne P. Goode, chairman of the House Education Committee.

Goode sponsored a bill this year intended to equalize state aid by changing the old school foundation program. It passed the House but never got out of the Senate Committee on Budget Control because of its estimated $40 million price tag.

Goode says he plans to introduce a similar bill next year and it will have the same basic goals -- to help the high cost urgan districts which have special local problems and also to help the poor rural districts which have such a low tax base they cannot provide adequate pupil support.

Support per pupil in Missouri is now far out of line, ranging from $400 per pupil in some poor rural districts to as much as $2,500 per pupil in Clayton, the wealthiest district.

Tax rates also vary widely, ranging from $2 per $100 assessed valuation to more than $5 in some districts.

"The property tax system in Missouri borders on the ridiculous," Goode said. "There's a big need for reforming the tax assessment procedure, which is basic to the whole thing. The present system just does not work."

He said the tax assessment situation, with its wide variations from county to county, was one of the problems that concerned him most about school financing.

Goode's bill would have raised the statewide average of state aid to about $950 a student, compared with the present guarantee of $400. That would be a long step toward the eventual goal of educators to have the schools supported 50 per cent by local taxes and 50 per cent by state aid.

Goode conceded that if his bill were passed by the 1975 session, it would not necessarily have to be fully funded. That has been the case with the present school foundation program during certain lean fiscal periods.

One problem is the so-called "grandfather clause", and Goode said he would be unyielding in his opposition to that because it would just compound some of the present inequities of the foundation program.

Merrell, a former schoolman himself, took the opposite tack. He said his one big reservation about Goode's bill was that it would take funds away from some districts. Merrell indicated he would be for it if it could be drafted so that all districts would be guaranteed the same amounts of state aid they are now getting.

States will now set libel suit standards

WASHINGTON (AP) — Over the protests of dissenters who differed among themselves, a narrow majority of the Supreme Court has devised a new rule governing libel suits by private individuals.

In a 5-4 decision Tuesday, the court said states are free to set their own standards for allowing private citizens to sue for damages for injuries suffered through libel. The decision had the effect of making it easier for private citizens to sue for libel, although the court set strict guidelines concerning awards for punitive damages.

To obtain punitive damages or to collect damages without proving they have been harmed, they must show that the statement of which they complain was made "in the knowledge that it was false or with reckless disregard of the truth."

Punitive damages are designed to punish the perpetrator of the libel. Another form of libel award is the presumed damage, ordered because of the fact of publication, without proof it did harm.

The court's decision wiped out a 1971 ruling in which it said private persons suing for libel damages of any kind needed to satisfy the reckless disregard test if the allegedly libelous statement concerned a matter of public interest.

It came in a case involving Chicago lawyer Elmer Gertz, who was called a "Communist fronter" by the John Birch Society's American Opinion magazine after he represented the family of a youth shot by a Chicago policeman.

Gertz won a $50,000 libel judgment from a jury, a judgment overturned by the U.S. Circuit Court in Chicago. The Supreme Court sent the case back to the lower court for a new trial.

Justices William O. Douglas and William J. Brennan dissented on grounds that it infringes on freedom of the press.

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justice Byron White attacked the majority from the opposite direction.

White said the decision "goes far towards eviscerating the effectiveness of the ordinary libel action" and would "leave the people at the complete mercy of the press." Burger, noting that the case decided involved a lawyer who was criticized because of his involvement in a controversial legal proceeding, said:

"The right to counsel would be gravely jeopardized if every lawyer who takes an unpopular case, civil or criminal, would automatically become fair game for irresponsible reporters and editors who might, for example, describe the lawyer as a 'mob mouthpiece' for representing a client with a serious prior criminal record."

The case was the latest in a series of major libel decisions in which the court established the reckless disregard test but limited it to public officials. Before, people bringing libel suits needed only to prove that the publisher or broadcaster had not taken reasonable care to see that the material was accurate.

In 1967, the court said public figures also must prove reckless disregard to collect for libel. Then, in 1971, the court declared that the same rule applied to statements about private individuals so long as they dealt with public issues.

USDA says grain stockpile prospects dim

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prospects for rebuilding the world's grain stockpile by the summer of 1975 are not as bright as indicated three months ago, the Agriculture Department said Monday.

The department's Foreign Agricultural Srvice said the consumption of grain — including wheat and corn — will be larger than believed earlier, while 1974 crop production in some areas will be less than indicated in a similar analysis last March 15.

"Crop prospects for 1974, especially for wheat, are somewhat less favorable in parts of North America and Asia," the report said. "Cool spring weather, combined with some planting delays, caused by excessive moisture conditions, have generally tended to reduce the earlier prospects for bumper crops of spring-sown grains in the affected areas."

The report, however, said wheat production this year will be larger than previously expected in some regions, including the Middle East, North Africa and parts of Europe.

"The feed grain stock level corn, oats, barley and sorghum on the other hand, may increase substantially, but this will depend heavily upon whether the 1974 U.S. corn crop reaches the level officially forecast last March," the report said.

Department officials have predicted U.S. farmers will produce a record corn crop this year of nearly 6.7 billion bushels, about 167 million metric tons. The report Monday, however, said wet weather had delayed planting in the Midwest and "has clouded this outlook somewhat."

The report showed world wheat consumption in the year beginning July 1 is expected to total 370.7 million metric tons, up from 365.5 million projected last March 15.

Although in excess of expected demand in 1974-75, that was down about 700,000 tons from the output estimated three months ago.

According to the new figures, the wheat stockpile held by the United States and its major export competitors — Canda, Australia and Argentina — will be 32.5 million tons on June 30, 1975, the end of the coming marketing year.

That would be down from a mid-1975 wheat stockpile of 33.8 million tons expected last March.

SeMo educators awarded grants

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Initial grants totaling more than $8,300 have been awarded to 15 Southeast Missouri State University professors by the University Research Council.

The council was established last year after a Faculty Senate committee recommended it to Southeast Missouri State president Dr. Mark F. Scully.

Purpose of the organization, which consists of representatives of each instructional division of the university, plus the director of institutional research and the university reference librarian, is to aid and encourage faculty research at all levels.

The grant program is being funded by the university, beginning with the 1974-75 school year, at the rate of $2 per full- time equivalent student, according to Dr. Tom Harte, associate professor of speech and council chairman.

Research topics for which the first grants were awarded range from a study of thermal springs in Yellowstone National Park to geological field mapping of the Perryville Quadrangle to a study of women in Civil War cities.

Altogether, three projects in earth science and three in history were funded, two in education- psychology received awards and one each went to studies in mathematics, biology, physics, social science, chemistry and music.

Each of the professors receiving grants were required to submit a detailed proposal to the research council which evaluated the suggested study.

The maximum amount which the council may award for a single project is $1,000. Two of the 15 professors, Dr. Gary Lowell of the earth science department and Herbert Pinnick Jr. of the chemistry department, received awards in that amount.

The next highest amount, $880, went to Dr. Harley Rutledge, head of the physics department, to enable him to continue his study of strange lights in the skies of Southeast Missouri.

Other awards were given to Dr. Mangho Ahuja, mathematics, $250; Wayne Hoover and Robert Johnson, education- psychology, $480; Dr. Sarah Sitton, education-psychology, $360; Dr. Russell Kullberg, biology, $725; Louis Unfer, earth science, $450; Dr. B. Ray Knox, earth science, $996; Gerold Thompson, social science, $240; Dr. J. Christopher Schnell, history, $605.83; Dr. B. Gene Ramsey, history, $489.30; Dr. Joseph Werne, history, $796; and Dr. Robert Jones, music, $540.

Besides Dr. Harte, other members of the University Research Council are Dr. George Suggs, Dr. Fred Snider, Dr. Bert Kellerman, Dr. John Shelton, Dr. Harold Hager, Dr. George Counts and Mrs. Janice Nunnelle.

Southeast Missouri State also has a Graduate Faculty Grant Program, primary purpose of which is to encourage scholarly activity which will benefit the university's graduate program. It is separate from the University Research Council.

CAPE GIRARDEAU — James Lee Hewitt, a 1966 graduate of Morehouse High School and industrial arts instructor at Dexter, has been elected to Who's Who Among Students in American Vocational and Technical Schools in recognition of outstanding merit and accomplishment as a student in the Department of Industrial and Technical Education at Southeast Missouri State University.

He was nominated by the ITE departmental staff on the basis of the following eligibility criteria: Scholastic excellence in career courses studied, participation and leadership in civic activities, citizenship and service to his school and potential for future achievement.

A certificate was presented and his name will appear in the Who's Who book.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James C. Hewitt of Morehouse and a 1970 graduate of Southeast Missouri State. He worked as an engineering draftsman for Amax Aluminum Extrusion products in St. Charles, Ill., Anchor Toy Corp., in Sikeston and for the Printing Service of Southeast Missouri State University.

Mayors challenge Nixon commitment

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon's continued commitment to the New Federalism concept of sharing federal powers and dollars with the cities faces a challenge from the nation's mayors.

The U.S. Conference of Mayors, dominated by Democrats, was expected to adopt a resolution today declaring that the promises of the New Federalism haven't yet been fulfilled.

The measure, with companion proposals, calls on the administration and Congress to follow through with acceptable amounts of federal aid for second-step New Federalism programs such as mass transit and housing.

The measure also demands that Congress enforce its pledge to challenge Nixon on future impoundment of appropriated funds for urban programs.

Mayor Henry W. Maier of Milwaukee said he thought the President had undercut the New Federalism by impoundment of urban programs funds Congress appropriated.

"The burglary of the budget is much more serious than the burglary of the Democratic national headquarters," said Maier, president of the newly formed National Conference of Democratic Mayors.

The five-day conference, with about 350 mayors on hand, concludes with today's business session and the expected election of San Francisco's Joseph L. Alioto as the new conference president.

The overriding theme has been that the first step of the New Federalism, general revenue sharing, has been good in concept but that inflation has offset its promise by eating into city budgets.

The mayors are asking for early re-enactment of general revenue sharing, at least a year before the current program expires at the end of 1976.

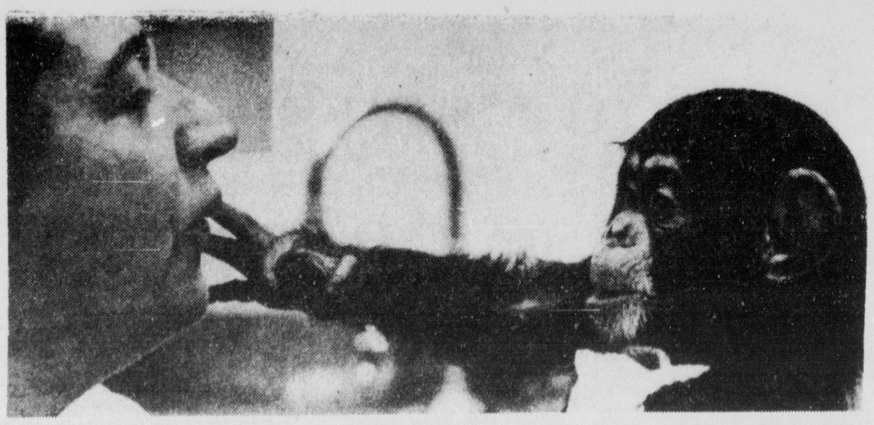
In private meetings with the mayors, the administration communicated that assurance through Nixon's chief domestic adviser, Kenneth R. Cole Jr.

But of more urgent interest to the mayors is congressional passage, and Nixon approval, of two massive second-step New Federalism programs: The $11.3 billion housing and community development bill and an $18 billion, five-year mass transit program.

Cole and other administration officials warned the mayors in advance, however, not to expect to get all the money they want.

Housing Secretary James T. Lynn told the conference Tuesday he is sympathetic with the mayor's desires and understands their feeling that the money is there—by trimming the defense budget.

But Lynn said inflation is the overriding issue and that to hope for diversion of defense funds is unrealistic.



SEE ONE CHIMP AND YOU'VE SEEN 'EM ALL may be some people's attitude, but not "chimp nurse" Dottie Salter's. Chimps and monkeys purchased as infants or rejected by their mothers spend a year under her care before going into medical research programs. Care includes food, clean diapers, play and lots of love and, she says, "is no trouble." (Photos by T.F.N. McNease)

Missouri residents receive preference to UMKC schools

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Officials of the University of Missouri-Kansas City law and dental schools have advised state legislators that Missouri residents receive preference for admission to their schools.

Deans H. B. G. Robinson of the dental school and Patrick D. Kelley of the law school told a special House appropriations subcommittee Tuesday the annual admissions to the two professional schools are composed mainly of state residents.

The subcommittee began its hearings into the admission procedures at state-supported professional schools after various legislators received complaints about out-of-state applicants being favored for admission to professional schools supported by state tax dollars.

"We're not on a witch hunt," said committee chairman Gene Copeland, D-New Madrid, "we're a fact-finding committee. We never want you to take a student that's not qualified, but we have to answer to those people, the people of Missouri."

Copeland said officials from the UMKC nursing and medical schools will also appear before the committee as well as those from the University of Missouri's Columbia's professional schools.

The majority of complaints about lack of preference for admission of qualified in-state applicants concerned the medical and law schools at Columbia, he said.

Robinson told the committee that more than 100 of the 160 students admitted each year to the dental school are from Missouri while Kelly pointed out that the admission requirements weighted in favor of the state residents have cause the annual admissions to the law school to include 85 per cent state residents.

Robinson also said that he has had a good relationship with both the governor and the state legislature, involving no pressure concerning the way the school is operating, and he commented," I wish others were as understanding as the legislators."

Committee members lauded the dental school's practice of personally interviewing potential students before deciding whether to accept them, and suggested that the UMKC law school institute a similar practice rather than relying on grades and test scores alone.

The committee, also concerned with the fact that in an effort to recruit minority students some more highly qualified non-minority students are turned away, asked for statistical information on applications and admissions to the law school.

The subcommittee will make its report to the House Appropriations Committee before December, Copeland said.

Although the Appropriations Committee has no direct control over admissions policies at the schools, he commented, "we appropriate money to operate these schools and we want to make sure that the taxpayers money is not being misspent."

Oil swindle takes famous people for $130 million

NEW YORK (AP) — Top show business personalities, business magnates and bigname lawyers were among victims of a $100-million oil-drilling swindle, the Wall Street Journal said today.

The newspaper said it may be the biggest swindle of its kind in history.

Investors sank about $130 million in it and all but $30 million went astray, the newspaper said. The Securities and Exchange Commission called it a "Ponzi scheme," in which the swindlers pay off early investors with money from more recent investors.

Show business investors identified by the newspaper and the amounts they invested included Andy Williams $538,000, Jack Benny $300,000, Rock singer David Cassidy $300,000, Walter Mathau $200,000 and Liza Minnelli $231,000.

Businessmen who had a major stake included Fred J. Borch, former chairman of General Electric Co., $440,920; Walter B. Wriston, chairman of the First National City Bank, $211,000; Russell W. McFall, chairman and president of Western Union, $394,000; John G. Martin, executive committee chairman of Heublein Co., $361,000, and Ralph A. Hart, director and former chairman of Heublein, $322,000.

Lawyers included Henry J. Fox of Washington, $108,500; Earl W. Kintner of Washington, $127,000; and Richard S. Storrs, $115,000.

The newspaper said the case centers on Home-Stake Production Co., a Tulsa, Okla., tax shelter oil-drilling company, which the SEC declared insolvent last September and is investigating.

The trustee in Home-Stake's bankruptcy and four groups of investors have filed suits in federal and state courts in Tulsa accusing the principals of wrong-doing, the Journal said. At least one federal grand jury is expected to convene soon, in Los Angeles or in New York, according to the newspaper.

Oklahoma oil lawyer Robert S. Trippet, who founded HomeStake in 1955 and ran it until he resigned last summer, has consented to a court injunction against securities law violations without admitting or denying any charges by the SEC, the Journal said. The newspaper said he claims he acted in good faith in raising money for oildrilling and warned investors that it was risky.

The Journal said Harvey L. Garland, operations manager for Home-Stake in the late 1960s, said it drilled five wells on a vegetable farm near Santa Marta, Calif., and to make things look more impressive got permission from the farmer to paint some of his irrigation pipes orange and code them with oil-field markings.

Garland said there was one legitimate 3,500-foot well and at least three dry 500-foot holes.

Egypt will defend Lebanon against raids

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Egypt is prepared to send its air force to defend Lebanon against Israeli air raids, even at the risk of another Middle East war, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat was quoted today as saying.

"I shall also make it a point that President Nixon is made to realize we shall not remain inactive toward Israeli attacks on Palestinian refugee camps in Lebanon," Sadat said in an interview published by the Beirut magazine As Sayyad.

Israeli artillery shelled the Lebanese village of Jouaya 12 miles from the Israeli-Lebanese border Tuesday night and preliminary reports said there were heavy losses.

The shelling was apparently in retaliation for the Palestinian guerrilla attack on the Israeli town of Nahariyya Monday night, in which an Israeli woman, her two children and an Israeli soldier—as well as the three Arab raiders—were killed.

Meanwhile in Jerusalem, police said two bazooka rockets set to be fired by a timing device were discovered early today in a field in the suburb of Ramat Eshkol. Security forces exploded the rockets and no one was hurt.

Sadat in the interview said he made the pledge last week in a letter to Lebanese President Suleiman Franjieh after Israel's air force attacked Palestinian guerrilla positions in refugee camps in southern Lebanon. The guerrillas said 34 persons were killed.

Lebanese Arab press reports said Sadat had offered to station five squadrons of Egyptian MIG21 interceptors in Lebanon. Syria also reportedly offered to supply Lebanon with mobile and shoulder-fired antiaircraft missiles.

The Lebanese government has made no comment on the reports, presumably waiting the outcome of a conference of Arab defense and foreign ministers opening in Cairo Monday.

Israeli Information Minister Aharon Yariv said in Jerusalem the support of Egypt and other Arab countries for Palestinian terrorism was endangering the American peace effort.

Sadat also told As Sayyad that the Soviet Union stopped arms deliveries to Egypt immediately after the October war, "but we have since been getting modern weapons from other sources" which he did not disclose.

Sadat added that he had invited Soviet Communist party chief Leonid Brezhnev to meet with him in Cairo " because I am not prejudiced and have no complex about my relations with the Soviets ...."

'Three Musketeers' premiers Friday

Adventure, action, love, chivalry, excitement, scope and realism are all important elements in director Richard Lester's new all- star film of Alexander Dumas's "The Three Musketeers", premiering Friday at Malco Twin Cinema II in Midtowner Village Shopping Center.

Humor, however, is the key to Lester's version of the cloak and sword extravaganza. The wit of the film comes directly from the novel, highlighting the satire and sophisticated comedy of the era.

The version of the novel most people recall reading is actually a children's edition — one that sacrifices the biting wit of the entire 700- page book for slice upon slice of adventure.

Filling the roles in the greatest swashbuckler of them all are Charlton Heston, Faye Dunaway, Raquel Welsh, Oliver Reed, Richard Chamberlain, Frank Finlay, Michael York, Christopher Lee and Geraldine Chaplin.

Gary McKown, John W. Pipkin and Ike Pope were named winners of Gates Mystery Shopper Awards and Dean Pipkin received a Gates Mystery Car Award for outstanding customer service of Gates Rubber Co. of Denver, Colo.

McKown operates Auto Tire and Parts Co., 330 N. Main St. John Pipkin is an employe of Twitty Farm Equipment in Lilbourn, and Pope operates Auto Tire and Parts Co. in Morehouse. Dean Pipkin works at Winters MFA Station in Kewanee.

Mystery shopper and mystery car awards are presented to service station personnel and Gates parts jobbers who show exceptional customer service to a "secret" Gates representative.

The awards are plaques bearing three Eisenhower dollars and two Kennedy half-dollars.

Name chosen for state park

JEFFERSON CITY — Finger Lakes State Park has been chosen as the name for Missouri's newest state park seven miles north of Columbia and east of U.S. 63, James L. Wilson, state parks director, announced.

The new name was selected because the 1,028- acre park, a former strip mine area, contains numerous water- filled strip pits which have formed elongated lakes resembling fingers.

The Missouri State Park Board intends to build a series of dams connecting some of the finger lakes for a three-mile canoe waterway, Wilson said. The park also will be developed for motorcycle trail riding. Other recreation development will permit fishing, swimming, scuba diving, camping, picnicking, hiking, nature study and horseback riding.

Once the site of an active coal mine, the property was deeded to the state on Dec. 6, 1973 by Peabody Coal Co. of St. Louis.

It has been designated a national demonstration project for outdoor recreation by the U.S. Department of Interior's Bureau of Outdoor Recreation (BOR), and is the only such demonstration park in BOR's 10- state mid- continent region.

The State Park Board has received $102,000 in federal matching monies equal to the value of the land from BOR's Land and Water Conservation Fund for park development.

Wilson said the park will be opened officially to the public later this year after access roads and parking areas are completed.

Finger Lakes State Park will be the site of a Sept. 14-15 motor cross being planned by the State Park Board as a feature event of its 50th anniversary this year.

The area is the 34th state park in Missouri.

World News in Brief

BRUSSELS (AP) — President Nixon paused today in his "journey for peace" to the Moscow summit to sign the new Atlantic Alliance declaration and confer with the leaders of America's chief European allies. The declaration approved last week at the spring meeting of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization formalizes a pledge that the United States will consult NATO's 14 other members before staking out new policies. After the signing by Nixon and heads of the other allied governments, the American President was to brief his allies about his Moscow trip at a closed-door session.

LONDON (AP) — Britain has been getting "more than its fair share" of the Arabs' new oil money, a high-ranking government source reported today. One authoritative estimate put the amount at $3 billion since the first of the year. Treasury and Bank of England sources confirmed that key Arab oil states—Saudi Arabia, Kuwait and Bahrain are among those mentioned—are pouring money into the country. Several countries appear to be funneling money in through intermediaries, including commercial banks, to invest in the depressed property market and stocks in British companies, now at a 15-year low.

SAIGON (AP) — Viet Cong sappers moving under the cover of a rocket and mortar attack blasted their way into a South Vietnamese special forces training center 20 miles east of Saigon before dawn today, the military command reported. A spokesman said the intruders blew up five barracks, killing seven government soldiers and wounding 28. One Viet Cong was killed and one was captured, the command said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Judiciary Committee has voted to make public most of the evidence it has received in secret impeachment hearings during the past seven weeks. When it will be released remains unclear but some members say all evidence relating to the Watergate cover-up, including the committee's versions of White House tapes, could be made public in a few days.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jury selection is beginning in the trial of former White House domestic affairs chief John D. Ehrlichman and three others accused of illegally attempting to gather psychiatric information about Daniel Ellsberg. U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell has said the question before the jury will be whether the defendants plotted to violate the rights of Ellsberg's psychiatrist, Dr. Lewis Fielding of Beverly Hills, Calif.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some key Pentagon officials are concerned that sharing certain U.S. technology with Russia under the detente policy could impair national security. Officials are worried mostly about the transfer of critical advanced computer technology, which has military as well as civilian application. Also bothering defense officials is the possibility that the Russians might be helped to gain ground in the field of micro-electronics.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A medical study has produced new evidence suggesting a high incidence of death from a rare liver cancer among factory employes working with vinyl chloride, a chemical widely used in the plastics industry. A study of vinyl chloride workers at the Goodyear plant in Niagara Falls, N.Y., found that three of 24 deaths were due to the cancer angiosarcoma.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Watergate committee is reported ready to release its vice chairman's secret report on possible CIA involvement on the Watergate break-in and cover-up. The move came after CIA Director William E. Colby asked Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., to make only minor deletions in Baker's 35-page investigative report. Baker has hinted for months that the report contains significant new information.

KIBBUTZ IN NEW ZEALAND?

WELLINGTON, New Zealand (AP) — New Zealand's labor government is considering establishing two Israel-type kibbutzim on undeveloped land.

Prime Minister Norman E. Kirk told a news conference he was looking for a New Zealand word, possibly a Maori one, to describe them.

"There are signs that many young people are feeling disillusioned with society because they are not participating in its development," Kirk said. "By establishing kibbutzim we will be telling these young people: Here is a settlement, let's see what you can do out of the wilderness.' "

In Saturday's edition of The Daily Standard, it was reported that a suit seeking a total of $485,000 in damages had been filed by Saveway Oil Co. and Edgar and Nadine Barnhill against Mrs. Louise Moreton, Economy Oil Co. Inc. and Sears Roebuck and Co. in connection with a fire on Feb. 11 which destroyed the Fina service station and restaurant near Wyatt.

The article failed to clarify that punitive damages of $50,000 was sought by Saveway Oil Co. from Sears Roebuck and Co. in the first suit. The oil company also sought punitive damages of $50,000 from Sears Roebuck in a second suit.

In the first suit, actual damages of $200,000 are being sought by the plaintiff from Mrs. Moreton, Economy Oil Co. and Sears Roebuck and Co. In the second suit, the plaintiffs are seeking $185,000 actuall damages from Mrs. Moreton, Economy Oil Co. and Sears Roebuck.

CONFIDENCE

The confidence and trust which a community has in a funeral service is something that takes many years to build. Indeed, the firm foundation upon which our funeral home rests was solidified over a period of generations. The confidence which so many families repose in our integrity was inspired by their parents and grandparents.

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Manager George "Sparky" Anderson, cheered by a 3-2 Reds victory, was reported resting comfortably today after being hospitalized with persistent back and neck pains.

Anderson flew to Cincinnati from Houston Tuesday night.

In his absence, third base coach Alex Grammas has taken over.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals are back atop the National League East but not without a struggle.

Manager Red Schoendienst shuffled 20 players, including six pitchers, into the lineup Tuesday night and watched a late rally tip the Pittsburgh Pirates 8-7.

So thin were Redbird ranks at the finish that left-hander John Curtis, a starting pitcher, finished in relief.

And Schoendienst, whose club moved a percentage point ahead of the Philadelphia Phils, admitted Sonny Siebert would have been next "If we'd gotten in any more trouble."

The 37 - year - old Siebert, 7-4, is scheduled to pitch tonight as the Cards attempt to cap a four-game sweep of the fifth- place Bucs.

Pittsburgh Manager Danny Murtaugh, whose team has lost eight of nine to St. Louis, has nominated hard- luck left- hander Jim Rooker, 3-6, to try to become the stopper.

Curtis, 4-7 as a starter, and two eighth- inning hitters who failed to bunt were among key Cardinal figures Tuesday night.

"When they told Siebert to go down to the bullpen I told Red I felt good enough to go an inning," related Curtis, who volunteered for the relief.

"I'd been throwing about 20 minutes anyway ahead of my next start," he added. "I felt like I had a lot left and it ought to be out to use."

Curtis succeeded where four of five predecessors had failed and set the Pirates down on only Ed Kirkpatrick's single in the ninth.

Ahead of the respite a wild eighth inning included four Pirate runs for a 7-6 lead which was overcome by a Cardinal counter- attack.

Ken Reith led off the winning burst with his second single and Mike Tyson, after failing to sacrifice, doubled home pinchrunner Jack Heidemann.

Ted Sizemore was then also supposed to bunt but failed and singled on the infield setting up a winning hit by Lou Brock.

"That's one time when two bunt attempts failed and paid off," observed Cards Coach Vern Benson. "You never know in this game what's going to happen.'

Attesting to the fact was Pittsburgh's Al Oliver, whose single and two doubles drove in four runs and produced the only Pirate lead.

"It really hurts to lose a game like this after battling back." he conceded, "but the game's gone now. All we can do is try again tomorrow."

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds, who brag of never having had a playing date rained out in Riverfront Stadium, said Tuesday no future games will be delayed more than 20 minutes with the addition of Big Red Machine II.

The machines vacuum water off the astroturf surface once the rain stops. "With this new machine," said Terry Barthelmas, director of stadium operations, "we'll be able to do a complete blowoff of the water in less than 20 minutes."

Since moving into the stadium in June 1970, Cincinnati has not had a date rained out. However, the second game of a doubleheader July 18, 1971 was canceled by continued rains.

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — The University of Arizona baseball team has been invited to participate in the Haarlem Baseball Week in The Netherlands next month, Coach Jerry Kindall said Tuesday.

Kindall said he will take a 16- man squad to the tournament, leaving Los Angeles July 8. The team will play an exhibition game in West Germany July 10 before going to Holland for the July 12-21 tournament, he said.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Defensive tackle Bill Sandifer of UCLA, a second-round choice of the San Francisco 49ers in the National Football League draft, underwent surgery at St. Mary's Hospital here Tuesday for repair of a torn knee ligament.

Sandifer was injured in the fourth quarter of the Coaches All-America game at Lubbock, Tex., Saturday night.

Lawrence fashions 1-hitter

A fifth inning hit by M. Silverthorn spoiled the upset and shutout bid of Nowell's Lawrence in Jr. Babe Ruth action Tuesday night. Nowell defeated Elliott- Newton 4-1 and IBEW took Davis and Bird 7-4.

Lawrence fanned 12 and walked six in his seven innings of work and connected for a key double during a big four run fifth.

Barnett doubled twice and picked up the victory from the mound, fanning seven and walking one as IBEW held off a late game bid by D&B.

Keller had two of D&B's hits, one a double and Greer banged out a two bagger for the only extra base hits of the game.

Deer season Nov. 16-24

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The state conservation commission announced Tuesday a nine- day deer season from Nov. 16-24, which will include various changes from the past.

One of the most significant changes, the commission said, will be the division of the east central area of Missouri into two management units. That division, which will increase the number of state management units from 10 to 11, is due to the fact that the east central area has portions with both too many and too few deer, the commission said.

There also will be a quota of 1,200 antlerless deer permits this fall, another change from the past. The commission said that change is intended to limit the harvest of those animals.

In addition, the commission said a primitive weapons hunt has been added to the list of special and managed deer hunts for this year.

That events, involving muzzleloaders, crossbows and archery, will be held Oct. 12-14 at the Sam A. Baker State Park.

Evans spoils no-hitter

Evans spoiled Milton's no-hit bid in American Little League play Tuesday night, but Ryan did get a shutout, blanking Ziegenhorn 10-0. Nunnelee rallied for a 17-6 win over Caproco in the other league encounter.

Ryan had to go only four innings to make easy work of their opponents, pounding out 10 hits and getting extra base hits from Bickford and Rice. Bickford doubled and homered while Rice doubled and led Ryan's 10 hit assault with three safeties.

K. Howard homered, doubled and had three hits to pace Nunnelee's five inning victory.

Nunnelee fell behind 5-1 after the first inning and didn't overcome that margin until the fifth when they scored five and then scored eight more the next two frames to bring the game to an end after five innings. Beasley picked up the win. Meeker tripled for the losers, who were led in the hitting department by Richardson and Twin with two hits apiece.

Pitchers NL standouts

Blow and Malcolm rules the National Little League circuit Tuesday night with their pitching arms. Blow hurled Pizza Inn to a two-hit, 10-0 four inning romp of A&B Oil while the Jaycees hustled to an 8-5 win over Legion behind the three hit performance of Malcolm.

The Inn opened the game with four runs in the last of the first and breezed through the four inning affair as Moyers was the only A&B player to get to the Inn's hurler, collecting both of his teams hits. Jerry Laseter and Lane paced the winners hitting with two hits apiece.

Despite the home run slugging of Tope, the Jaycees rallied from a 5-4 deficit with a four run fifth inning uprising for the win. Malcolm aided his own cause with a key double and went two for three at the plate while teammate, Glidwell had a perfect night with two hits in two trips to the plate.

Reds, Dodgers lead star vote

NEW YORK (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds and Los Angeles Dodgers, rivals for the National League's West Division crown, are on the verge of sewing up seven of eight possible starting spots on the National League squad for major league baseball's All-Star game.

Figures released Monday by Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn's office show the Reds are leading in the race for four positions and the Dodgers three. With only two weeks of balloting remaining, all of the leaders appear assured of starting berths.

Cincinnati's Pete Rose follows Aaron in the race among outfielders with 571,231 votes while Jimmy Wynn of Los Angeles is third with 497,232.

Catcher Johnny Bench, first baseman Tony Perez and second baseman Joe Morgan are the other Reds heading for starting spots. Bench, second to Aaron in over-all votes, was named on 812,684 ballots with runner-up Joe Ferguson of Los Angeles polling 242,013.

Perez has 319,640 votes to 287,022 for Bill Buckner of Los Angeles, and Morgan is a runaway leader at his position, topping Philadelphia's Dave Cash, 519,836 to 372,694.

Third baseman Ron Cey and shortstop Bill Russell are the other Dodger leaders. Cey has 470,651 votes to 305,013 for Pittsburgh's Richie Hebner. Russell leads Cincinnati's Dave Concepcion, 402,890 to 303,949.

Balloting ends July 8 for the classic, scheduled for July 23 at Pittsburgh's Three Rivers Stadium.

Piel claims duffers title

Eric Piel of Sikeston came away with first place in the championship class of this year's Jaycee Duffers Golf Tournament at Sikeston Country Club, receiving the traveling trophy from last year's tournament winner, Harry White of Sikeston.

John Handon of Delta made a hole in one on the 150- yard- sixth hole.

Senator Hearnes? No decision

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This feature appeared in a recent issue of the Charleston Enterprise-Courier.)

By Raymond Krogh

Warren Hearnes practices law in the same Charleston building that housed his childhood doctor. In his third floor office an American Flag sits at the right side of his desk, a Missouri Flag at the left. Cigar in hand, he takes phone calls from Missourians who want to talk to "the Governor" about this or that complaint.

Five times elected to the Missouri Legislature from Mississippi County, later Secretary of State and eventually the first Governor of Missouri ever to succeed himself, Hearnes has been a private citizen since Christopher Bond took over as Governor in January of 1973.

He now divides his time between St. Louis and Charleston law practices, driving up to St. Louis on Monday, and back to Charleston on Wednesday nights. In his smartly decorated Charleston law office Hearnes talked about whether or not he had reached a decision on running for the U. S. Senate in 1976.

"It's 'way too early for that,'' he says. The announcement, one way or another, will come in 1975. "Now whether it will be April or December, I wouldn't want to pin myself down," Hearnes says, "but I think a person has to make up his mind and begin to move."

If Hearnes does run for office, the political arena should be a good deal easier for him to re-enter than for a novice, because, while he has left political office, he has not left politics.

An annual Democratic fund raising dinner, celebrating the birthdays of Hearnes and his wife Betty is being held, next month, this year and for the first time away from Jefferson City, at the Ramada Inn in Miner. Proceeds from previous dinners, stretching back to 1964 have gone to the Democratic State Committee. This year the money will go to Democratic campaigns in Missouri.

Hearnes says since it is not in Jefferson City, this year's dinner is "kind of an experiment,'' but feels there will be a good turnout nevertheless. The guest speaker for the dinner is Democratic National Chairman, Robert Strauss of Texas.

Speakers for the dinners have usually been political heavyweights. Last year the key speaker was Washington Senator Henry "Scoop" Jackson, whom Hearnes supported for the 1972 Presidential nomination after Muskie dropped out.

Hearnes says planning for the dinner is shaping up nicely this year with none of the rancor over the program which marred the planning stages of the '73 dinner. "You had a lot of chiefs running it last year and not many Indians," he said, adding that the dinner came off well despite its initial troubles.

Hearnes also keeps politically active in his role as Missouri's Democratic National Committeeman. In this capacity, he has been openly critical of the organizational rules of the 1972 Democratic convention, which sent more women and minority delegates to the convention than previously, but also factionalized the Democratic Party.

He said last year that the application of predetermined guidelines for selection of delegates did not work in '72 and called then for a system of "representative democracy," ather than the "participatory democratcy," under which he said '72 convention delegates had been chosen.

Though no final system of delegate selection has been decided upon for the 1976 convention, Hearnes is not happy with the way things look. "They have not as yet reached a selection process which doesn't lend itself to chaos and uncertainty and hard feelings. They may before '76. They haven't yet." Hearnes voted against the tentative rules by which the delegates are selected in '76, we'll have a real fragmented convention. You'll have a lot of candidates with a few votes," Hearnes said.

If he does get back into politics, it is doubtful that Hearnes will go, even as a delegate to the '76 convention. "You can't run but one campaign at a time," he says, "I went in '68, but at that time I didn't have any primary opposition and I could afford the luxury of taking the time off. But if I ran for Senator in '76, about the time they had that convention, I'd be wearing out the shoe leather."

One dark spot that has recently appeared on Hearnes' political horizon is the Federal Grand Jury investigation of the activities of his former campaign manager, Delton Houtchens.

The grand jury is looking into charges of influence peddling during the Hearnes administration. The allegations against Houtchens are that businesses which were "public relations" clients of a company Houtchens owned had state contracts awarded to them because of Houtchens' political clout.

The St. Louis Globe - Democrat reported in April, for instance, that the William T. Collins Shows Inc. were awarded contracts for the Missouri State Fair during the Hearnes administration while using Houtchens' company for public relations work.

The Globe- Democrat has also reported that the grand jury is looking into charges that there were "politically favored banks," during the Hearnes administration.

"The impression the Globe - Democrat gives in the story on Houtchens is that he was a public official when he wasn't.

How do you correct something like that?" Hearnes said. Of the grand jury investigation he says "They investigate Democratic dinners. I've never heard of them investigating any Republican dinners. In other words, I think there's a lot of politics going on in Kansas City."

Hearnes occasionally uses the word "politics" in this sense. Meaning, not the public decision - making process, but the struggle of one party to gain hegemony over another by shaping public opinion.

"As long as it's going to be politics, we might as well have open debates rather than closed grand jury proceedings," said Hearnes, who doesn't like the grand jury system in general. "I think a person ought to be represented by an attorney under the protection of a judge to rule on the relevancy or irrelevancy of evidence. All of the things that go with what we call the Constitution of the United States." If a person is indicted by a grand jury and later exonerated, Hearnes says, he is never REALLY exonerated.

"And so many grand juries will say 'well, let's go ahead and indict him, he can prove his guilt or innocence when he's tried,' and they don't realize what they've done to a person."

Hearnes says he has no right to give opinions on Houtchens' alleged offenses. "It's really not up to me to form a judgment on who a person should take as a client. Some people might not like some of the clients I have now -- that my firm has," Hearnes said. "Houtchens was and is a private citizen. If he had been my director of revenue or my Agriculture Commissioner or something like that, I would have a right to sit in judgment.

He wasn't in the state's employ. And he drew no salary from the Democratic Party."

Even in light of the charges against Houtchens, Hearnes doesn't feel that the moralistic political atmosphere left by Watergate will hurt him much. "I think just the fact that you've held public office would be enough to taint you in the minds of the voters," Hearnes said, adding that Watergate has accented the bad feelings towards former office holders, but that nothing qualitatively has changed from previous years.

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat has consistently given front- page coverage to stories relating to the Houtchens matter. In a year in which the Republican Party is scandal - ridden to its elbows, some maintain the Republican - oriented Globe is grasping at straws in the Houtchesn case in an effort to find corruption in Democratic ranks.

While Hearnes says he is certain the Globe would like to find a Democratic corruption scandal in order to help the Republican fortunes in '74, he says he wouldn't criticize the Globe more than any other newspaper. He adds, however, that in his opinion, there has been a concentrated effort to give the impression that Houtchens was a government employe. Hearnes says this effort was "started from Jefferson City,' and has been "aided and abetted by newspaper reporters."

In his final speech before it as Governor, Hearnes urged the Missouri Legislature to eliminate the personal property tax on household goods and stressed the need for comprehensive reorganization of state government. Both proposals have been made into law under the Bond administration.

Hearnes is pleased with the Legislature's repeal of parts of the personal property tax. "What we had in the personal property tax on household goods made liars out of everybody. I think what the Democratic Legislature did was the best thing that could have been done."

Hearnes feels however that a long period of time will be needed to judge the virtues or faults of the reorganization bill enacted by the Legislature. "Talking about reorganizing state government," Hearnes says, "is like being against sin and for motherhood. The proof's in the pudding and you have to wait."

Hearnes is skeptical of how the Bond administration is adapting to the changes that will be brought by reorganization. Hearnes cited Bond's desire to make all new appointments in the state government. 'Now this is a man who says he's against patronage. Hearnes said "The idea of hold-over appointments is that no one Governor controls all the boards. That was the idea anyway of the writers of the Constitution. Well, he's trying to under reorganization, do away with all of them and reappoint them, and I know the Legislature did not intend for that to happen. So we'll have to see how that will come out."

Hearnes has taken special pride in his administration's accomplishments in the areas of educational and mental health support. He feels however, that the Bond administration has fallen short in follow-up support for those programs. Hearnes says Bond is "worried too much about '76 and not enough about the problems that his budget cuts in those areas have caused.

Of the Bond administration in general, Hearnes says "There are little things that people should know about. Not big enough to form a complete opinion on an administration, but interesting things, humorous things. I can remember in 1970 the Republicans adopted their platform and called upon me to immediately sell the airplane that I was using. Well, he not only has the same airplane but has bought three more. They have taken over a complete hangar and hired a dispatcher."

Hearnes' stock reponse to the stock question about how he likes practicing law rather than being in politics is, "I'm making more money but enjoying it less."

Time will tell if law practice remains the ex-governor's work or is remembered by him only as a breathing space between races.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Sirs,
Please print my poem.
Thank you
Lisa Roslen

LET ME BE THERE WITH YOU!

Let me be there with you,
so I'm no longer blue.
I want you always to be with me,
Oh, can't you see.
We can make it,
Without any trouble, not even one little bit.
You can be mine
if you'll say so before I am behind.
We won't quarrel or fight
and oh I'll love you with all my might
If I just knew what to say,
but all I can say is I loved you before today
But I was so blue
So let me be there with you!

Again, thanks for your help in getting the TOM CURTIS MESSAGE to your readers.

Owners fight bottomland destruction

STOCKTON, Mo. (AP) — "They're just a bunch of landgrabbers ... they're not going to get it," said Dean Dawes.

The 35-year-old farmer has lived nearly all his life on a hill overlooking the Sac River in southwest Missouri and the "it" he was talking about is a 120-acre bottomland field which he owns, rents and tills.

The Army's district engineer in Kansas City has forwarded up the chain of command a recommendation that the government buy 2,500 acres or more along 16 miles of the river below Stockton Dam.

The turbine in the dam is designed to generate up to almost 52,000 kilowatts of electricity, spewing out water at up to 11,000 cubic feet per second. But when they first tried it in November of 1972, the Army Engineers discovered that the bankfull Sac can carry off only about 5,100 cubic feet a second, and that only in short bursts of six to eight hours a day.

Ever since that first trial run wrought havoc along the 16 miles to Caplinger Mills, Mo., and indicated there would be more trouble for another five miles down the river, many of the landowners have been fighting the engineers with recriminations.

Clark I. Montgomery said the notification of the decision to buy up the bottomland was typical.

Montgomery didn't get one of the 68 letters addressed to landowners by Col. W.R. Needham, the district engineer in Kansas City. He owns, manages or rents out about 2,500 acres for members of his family, so his father got one — with the wrong initials. The post office people in Stockton, official population 1,063, recognized Montogmery's relationship with some of the other addresses, and he forwarded them to such places as Aurora, Mo., and Vinita, Okla.

Montgomery, his wife and a couple from St. Louis who are long-time friends, took a sixhour float trip down the Sac on Sunday from a highway bridge just below the dam to another about half way to Caplinger Mills.

"There has been a lot more erosion, and there are a lot more trees in the river since last year," Montgomery said. "I'm no engineer, but it looks to me like they could come in there with a drag line and in very little time straighten it out and open it up so it could handle the water."

Enlarging the channel was one of the options rejected by Col. Needham when he decided to recommend that the government buy the bottomland. He figured the cost at over $5.7 million and expressed a doubt that the environmentalists would never stand for it.

The estimated cost of buying the land, figuring an average of $600 an acre on other expenses, is estimated at $2,925,000 between the dam and Caplinger Mills.

Col. Needham said he had carefully considered the complaints of the landowners.

"However, I must act in behalf of all the citizens of the United States."

Montgomery acted upon the line in a quick letter he got off Monday to Sen. Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo., and other members of the state's delegation in Congress.

" ... the steel worker in Gary, Indiana ... the taxi driver in Houston ... the coal miner in Kentucky ... the real estate dealer in suburban Los Angeles ... ghetto dwellers in inner cities — what we'd like to know is who is acting on behalf of all the landowners along the Sac River?" Montgomery wrote.

Dean Dawes didn't get a letter either, but his invalid father did. As in Montgomery's case, the land records at the Cedar County courthouse in Stockton haven't caught up with the fact that Dean bought the 185-acre farm from his father.

About 40 of those acres, along with 80 rented from Montgomery, make up what has become known as Keith's Island.

"My dad farmed that land for 23 straight years until his health got bad," Dawes said. "The rest of our farm is mostly hilly. That bottom field has always provided the feed for the livestock and the cash crop."

In all that time, the younger Dawes recounted, his father never had a complete crop failure because of flooding. He was able to save some of his corn or get in and sow a late crop or use it for pasture.

From November of 1972, when the engineers started their flow tests, until July 3, 1973, Dawes says he was never able to get to Keith's Island.

"I filed just a little claim for $4,000 in crop loss," he said. "The only thing I've ever heard from it was a one-paragraph letter 5½ weeks later saying they'd forwarded it to some place in Maryland."

Much of the time since the first burst of outrage from the landowners, the engineers have held the water discharge to around the 5,100 cubic feet per second which the Sac can handle in six-hour bursts.

Heavy rains in the spring of 1973 and the growing demand for power resulted in more flooding.

Last fall, when the discharges were limited to six hours a day and five days a week, Dean Dawes planted a wheat crop on Keith's Island.

A week ago Saturday, the wheat wasn't quite ready and Dean's father-in-law was using his combine in his own fields. The wheat was ready after the weekend, but the water was up again and the combine still wasn't available.

"Last Saturday we went in and got the wheat out," Dawes reported. "It ran 28 to 29 bushels to the acre and will figure out to about $8,000."

While the water was down for the weekend, Dean moved two tractors, two plows and a disc harrow onto the island.

He planned to put in a milo crop this week, hauling a boat across to the island each morning when the river was down so he could get back home in the evening when the daily discharge from the dam still was flowing high.

But Dean Dawes spent Sunday night getting the two tractors, the two plows and the disc harrow back from Keith's Island.

An acquaintance who works for the Corps of Engineers tipped him that at 7 a.m. Monday morning the dam would start disgorging its 5,100 cubic feet per second for 16 hours a day for about two weeks. The water would never recede enough for him to get too and from the island, and he figured two more weeks would be too late to plant milo.

"They really didn't warn anybody," Dawes said, "but the fellows at the power plant are very cooperative. They got the word from Kansas City on Friday."

The orders were to run the water 16 hours a day until the 25,000-acre lake on the north fringe of the Ozarks has been lowered about 3.6 feet to its normal power-pool level.

Dawes said the reason he heard is that the higher level was flooding and washing out the road loops through one or two camp grounds in the lake's public use areas.

Dawes thinks the engineers ought to re-design the generator so it can run effectively without discharging so much water.

"They haven't got enough water in that lake to keep it running at 8,000 cubic feet a second or 11,000 cubic feet a second for more than 35 or 40 days a year," he said.

After reading the letter, Dawes still could not bring himself to believe that the engineers would want to buy 2,500 acres and that it almost certainly would include all of Keith's Island.

At a public meeting with Col. Needham in Stockton on April 1, Dawes saw a rough map which he interpreted as indicating the government might want to buy all but 75 of his 185 acres, leaving him the farmstead and only marginally productive acres.

"There's not another place in the country I'd trade that bottomland for," he said.

"It will wipe out all the farmers who depend on bottomland. I feel pretty sick."

A Japanese in maker invented the folc ng fan in 670 A.D. Tradition says he was inspired by the breeze from a bat's fluttering wing.

Frankly speaking

'Veterans deserve help in education'

Veterans have sacrificed a part of their lives for America. It's up to the rest of the Americans to show their appreciation for this sacrifice.

The U. S. Senate is trying to do this by increasing educational benefits so that for the first time Vietnam veterans would receive education benefits comparable to those granted World War II veterans.

I strongly support the bill which would accomplish this, the Vietnam Era Veterans' Readjustment Assistance Act of 1974.

First, to catch up with the soaring cost of living, the bill would increase the monthly educational allowance by 18.2 per cent. This means the monthly allowance for a full-time student would go up from $220 to $260. For a veteran with one dependent, the increase would be from $261 to $309, and for a vet with two dependents, the rise would be from $298 to $352.

Since the last increase, in September, 1972, the cost of living has risen 14.6 per cent. It is expected to go up to 18 per cent by the beginning of the school year. The least we can do is keep the benefits consistent with the cost of living.

Tuition Benefits

The bill would also make tuition allowances available for the first time to Vietnam era veterans. Each veteran would receive an allowance of 80 per cent of the annual tuition cost above $100, up to a maximum allowance of $720.

This, along with the monthly living allowance increase, should significantly help veterans. Previously, for example, a single veteran attending the University of Missouri would receive $1,980 for a 9- month living allowance. But he had to take $540 of this to cover the school's tuition. Under this bill, that student would receive $2,340 to live on plus $352, or 80 per cent of $440, to help pay tuition.

For students attending colleges with extra high tuitions, low- interest loans of up to $2,000 per year would be available.

More Time to Get Education

A recent survey of veterans in schools in Missouri and nine other states showed that 49.4 per cent would not be able to complete schooling within the normal four years or 36 months, because of the high costs of both living and education. The bill before the Senate would extend to 45 months, or another school year, the total amount of time a veteran could attend school and receive assistance. It would also extend from eight to 10 years the time during which a veteran could make use of the education benefits.

A total of 682,000 veterans live in Missouri -- 322,000 are World War II veterans snd 145,000 are Vietnam veterans. 153,000 have been eligible for educational benefits under the current GI Bill; 43.5 per cent of them have been taking advantage of that assistance. Slightly over half of that number have taken college courses while the rest have received vocational training or on-the-job training.

It's very possiblethe low benefits available predetermined for many Missouri veterans whether they would go on to college.

Education of a nation's young people is that nation's mainstay of strength. The Senate bill would go a long way toward equalizing the availability of education to veterans of the Vietnam era.

2. Card of Thanks

We wish to express our gratitude and appreciation to those who were so kind during the days of our sorrow in the death of our father.

We thank those who gave food, those who gave floral offerings and masses. A special thanks to Father Richard Rolwing and the Knights of Columbus for their prayers.

We also thank the pallbearers and the Amick- Burnett Funeral directors. Such kindness will never be forgotten.

The family of Victor Heiserer.

Let us take this means of offering our sincere appreciation for the flowers, food, and cards. Your thoughtfulness and consolation in our time of sorrow will never be forgotten. May the Lord bless you all.

The B. C. Franks Family

We wish to express our sincere gratitude for all the kindness and courtesies extended to us at the passing of our loved one, Rhonda Maschmeyer, and to thank those who assisted at the services, those who sent the lovely flowers and thoughtful gifts of food. We appreciate the kindness of the staff of the Nunnelee Funeral Home. We thank the police department for the escort. The east Side Church of Nazarine for their prayers. In memory of our loved one —

The family of Mourel Maschmeyer.

We would like to express our heartfelt thanks to neighbors, friends and relatives for the cards, flowers and kindnesses in our recent sorrow. Also thanks to those who sent food.

The Jackson Johnson Family

Cinnamon rolls are requested

NEW MADRID — The following recipes for Cinnamon Rolls and Butter Icing were contributed to The Daily Standard in 1968 by Mrs. Lucy French, a former resident who now lives in Memphis, Tenn.

I am sure these are the recipes requested by Mrs. James C. Crowson of Sikeston in a letter to the editor published June 19.

Nadine Townsend

CINNAMON ROLLS

Salads add much to meals

The fresh green color of spring can be echoed on the lunch and dinner table with sprightly leafy salads. A true crisp head or iceberg lettuce is the champion of the salad bowl, a great favorite. Cooks should also consider the ruffly green called escarole, the frilly- leaved, curly endive and the regal, plume- shaped romaine. Each has important vitamins to add to the elements of a meal. Leafy greens also contribute bulk to the diet, an indispensable factor for the body to function well.

Different salads for different meals

ANCHOVY LETTUCE SALAD
2 cans (2 oz. each) anchovy fillets
2 large tomatoes, cut into wedges
1 large cucumber, sliced
1 green pepper, cut into strips
1/4 cup olive or salad oil
2 tbsp. cider vinegar
1 tsp. fresh lemon juice
1/2 tsp. sugar
1/4 tsp. pepper
1 large head lettuce, broken into bite size pieces

Drain oil from anchovy fillets into a large mixing bowl. Separate and chop fillets and add to oil in bowl. Add tomatoes, cucumber and green pepper.

Coffee Corner by Cherie

Isn't it amazing how —

a fella can spot a bug on a leaf 20 feet away; yet fail to see the dirt on the end of his nose — literally!

the dog will bark and growl at anyone who comes to the door; yet never utters a word when someone sneaks off with Charles' car in the dead of night!

a fella can jump hurdles in track; yet can't keep from falling over his own feet in the house!

a husband can sit up till the wee hours to watch a baseball game; yet mention a game of bridge and he immediately falls asleep in his favorite chair!

a fella can eat junk all day and still be hollow; yet set him down at the dinner table and he is suddenly full as a tick!

a lady can get her hair done and never has anywhere to go; yet let her look a wreck and the invitations are unlimited!

a fella will keep his bicycle neat and clean; yet his room always looks like a disaster area!

a husband can eat home made biscuits nearly every day of the week; yet let him go out to a dinner party and he's telling everyone how he never gets any home baking like they're serving at his house!

a fella's friends are always going to be allowed to do something so he thinks he should be allowed the same privileges, yet talk to their mothers and you hear that they have gotten from theirs, the same sad story that you did!

a mother has any sense left in her head at all!!!

What's the law?

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Billy could hardly be called a male chauvinist. What was good enough for men, he believed, was certainly good enough for women. In particular, serving in the United States Army. Consequently, when he was drafted, he refused to report for induction on the grounds that since women weren't equally draftable, he wasn't reporting anywhere.

Without ado, Billy was hauled into court as a draft dodger. His defense was that the Selective Service Act was unconstitutional.

"Under the law," he argued, "any statute that classified individuals on the basis of sex isn't legal. And, that's exactly what the Selective Service Act does. It discriminates against men in favor of women. While we're trotted out to the frontlines, they're allowed to stay home to do their knitting."

"The security of the nation is more important than Billy's sex problems," responded a U.S. Attorney. " The fact is an army of men is needed to protect the county and its interests and Congress has the Constitutional authority to conscript them for that purpose.It's not a matter of discrimination; it's a matter of national necessity."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you hold the Selective Service Act unconstitutional as discriminatory against men?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held in effect that considering the strong constitutional authority given congress to raise an army and the additional fact that men lose many of their rights anyhow when they are conscripted, the Selective Service Act, concluded the judge, would be so disruptive as to jeopardize national security.

257 price rollbacks obtained by IRS

ST. LOUIS — During Internal Revenue Service administration of petroleum price controls in Missouri, 257 price rollbacks were obtained and $814,979.78 in overcharges were refunded in the form of lower prices to area motorists and other state petroleum users, according to R. C. Voskuil, district director of internal revenue.

In a final report on IRS involvement in the energy program Voskuil also said that from Aug 13, 1973 through June 14, 1974, the IRS received 2,559 price complaints and investigated more than 4,947 gasoline and diesel fuel retailers, home heating oil firms and propane distributors, finding 1,901 violations.

Voskuil emphasized that although the IRS will no longer participate in the energy program, petroleum price controls remain in effect and that duties formerly performed by IRS will be assumed by the Federal Energy Administration on July 1.

Persons with inquiries on the energy program or who wish to report an alleged violation may call the FEA Office at (314) 622-5786 or write P. O. Drawer 1087, Central Station, StLouis, 63188. The number in Kansas City is (816) 374-2191, and the address is 811 Grand, Room 330, Kansas City, Mo. 64106.

Today in U.S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Wednesday, June 26, the 177th day of 1974. There are 188 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1945, delegats of 50 nations, meeting in San Francisco, signed the United Nations Charter.

On this date:

In 1541, the Spanish conqueror, Francisco Pizarro, was killed in Lima, Peru.

In 1549, the 17 provinces of The Netherlands were declared indpendent of the Holy Roman Empire.

In 1844, President John Tyler married Julia Gardiner in a secret wedding in New York.

In 1935, compulsory labor service was introduced in Nazi Germany.

In 1941, Finland announced it was a war with the Soviet Union—for the second time in two years.

In 1944, Allied forces captured Cherbourg, France from the Nazis.

Ten years ago: The Roman Catholic Church and the Spanish government said they had reached basic agreement on proposed legislation to grant legal recognition and certain rights to Spain's protestants.

Five year ago: There were serious outbreaks of racial violence in Omaha, Neb.; Cairo, Ill.; and Kokomo, Ind.

One year ago: The U.S. House of Representatives passed a bill barring the use of funds for American bombing operations in Cambodia and Laos.

Today's birthdays: Opera tenor Richard Crooks is 74. Engineer William Lear is 72.

Thought for today: The United Nations was set up not to get us to heaven, but only to save us from hell—Sir Winston Churchill, 1874-1965
